PANORAMA OF U. S. NAVY MIGHT IN PACIFIC. This panorama of ships is part of the powerful U. S. Navy task force which blasted Kwajalein atoll in the Marshalls of the central Pacific on Jan. 31-Feb 1 and then anchored on Feb. 11, when this picture was made, in a Marshalls atoll area. Nine aircraft carriers and 12 battleships are shown, along with cruisers, destroyers and supply ships. Left, from foreground back, are an aircraft carrier, two battleships and a carrier converted from a cruiser. In right center are five aircraft carriers and behind fifth (in line diagonally to left) is a battleship. At far right (rectangular outline) is another carrier converted from a cruiser. Navy officials say one million tons of shipping are represented in the picture. (Associated Press Wirephoto from Navy)

Bricker Says He's Uninterested in Second Place on Ticket

Governor's Manager Says He Will Go Into Convention with 257 Delegates; Executive on Air at 10:30 Tonight.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 25—Gov. Bricker of Ohio told a press conference today he is "not interested" in a vice presidential nomination on the Republican ticket.

The Ohio presidential candidate, here for a major campaign speech on foreign policy tonight, was asked if he would accept the second place on the ticket if he failed to obtain the nomination which he seeks.

"I am a candidate for President and intend to continue my campaign on that basis," the white-haired governor said. "I am not interested in a vice presidential nomination."

The governor told reporters he was "very well satisfied" with the progress of his campaign, declaring he had picked up some delegates on a recent west coast tour. Bricker did not comment directly on the claim of Roy D. Moore, his campaign manager, that the Bricker camp would go into the June convention with 257 delegates.

The governor said, however, he expected to have some representation in the southern delegations. He said he also had been assured of some votes from New England, an area which Moore had eliminated in his calculations as being unlikely to produce any large number of delegates for the governor.

Legislature To Act

Bricker reiterated at the press conference previously expressed views in opposition to the federal war ballot for servicemen. He said the Ohio legislature, meeting in special session tomorrow, would enact a new state ballot law extending the time in which soldiers can vote and making it easier for them to obtain and return ballots.

Criticizing the New Deal's administration of home front affairs, the governor said the election might be vitally affected by the progress of the proposed European invasion. He said he had found in the country a "general feeling that the war ought to be moved on." He said there was general confidence in military leaders but added that "any bad turn in the war or loss of confidence in the administration" would reflect against the Democrats in November.

Moore coupled his prediction with a forecast that there would be no first ballot nomination at the June convention.

In the first claim of this nature made by the Bricker camp, Moore told a reporter a survey of prospects in the midwest and south indicated the Ohio governor could count on the backing of about one-fourth of the 1,059 delegates.

With 530 votes needed to nominate, there has been much speculation among practical politicians that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, who says he is not a candidate, might amass sufficient strength to win on the first convention count.

Moore, who accompanied Bricker to New York City for a major speech on foreign policy before the Ohio Society tonight, took exception strenuously to that viewpoint.

"There will not be a first ballot nomination at the convention," he declared. "For the benefit of the Republican party, which has been waiting 12 years for the present trend in its direction, the nomination should be thoroughly deliberated.

"We have said the Democratic party is decadent because it has only one candidate. For that reason, if for no other, we cannot afford to have a cut and dried convention. The selection of the

GERMANS ACT AGAINST DANES

Stockholm Reports Denmark Cut Off as Nazis Fight Sabotage.

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, April 25 — Hitler's special deputy and minister to Denmark, Werner Best, today declared the Germans were moving swiftly against Danish saboteurs and underground elements affecting German interests.

Denmark was virtually isolated from Sweden and Best's statement before Danish press chiefs was the first tangible evidence of the reason. The country was cut off late yesterday afternoon.

Best asserted Denmark was "swarming" with "underground workers and it therefore was Germany's task to "attack swiftly and sternly." He says the Nazis would show no mercy toward saboteurs, indicating they would be shot when caught. He expressed hope that "conditions would stabilize, and that Danish public opinion would react against the recent increase of sabotage.

The belief was prevalent in Stockholm that Denmark was isolated so the underground could be cleaned up as a pre-invasion security measure. Similar action was expected in other occupied countries.

Only the barest, unsubstantiated rumors trickled through the Nazi blockade of Denmark. One was that the Copenhagen harbor area was closed. Another said German soldiers were guarding railroads and keeping close watch over workmen. The newspaper Aftonbladet said there were rumors last night in Helsinki of disturbances in Copenhagen and other parts of Denmark. Such rumors should be

MARION CO. MAN DIES IN PRISON HOSPITAL

David H. Griffith, Serving Life Sentence, Stricken.

David H. Griffith, 66, of near Prospect, serving a life sentence in the Ohio penitentiary for second degree murder, died of a heart ailment at the London Prison farm hospital yesterday, The Associated Press reported.

He entered the penitentiary Sept. 13, 1920, to serve a life term for the slaying of his 16-year-old daughter, Eva.

The report from the prison farm said he always contended the shooting was accidental and that it took place while the girl was playing with a revolver.

The girl was fatally shot in the head at the Griffith home on the edge of Prospect July 6, 1920. James F. Ullom, then sheriff, filed a first degree murder charge and Griffith was taken before G. Farr Larue, then justice of the peace, who bound the case over to the grand jury.

Indicted on a first degree murder charge, Griffith pleaded not guilty, but later entered a plea of guilty to second degree murder. Hector S. Young, now common pleas judge, was prosecuting attorney and the judge who sentenced Griffith was Judge Charles F. Close.

Griffith was a former railroad section worker at Prospect. He lost both legs in a railroad accident.

JAPS PUT UP LITTLE FIGHT IN NEW GUINEA

One Airdrome, Seized from Enemy Snipers, Already in Use by U. S. Planes.

By The Associated Press

MACARTHUR'S ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS, NEW GUINEA April 25—American and Dutch invaders, slowed more by mud and mountain than by disorganized Japanese resistance, closed from two sides today on three airfields in a 350-square-mile area of Dutch New Guinea around captured Hollandia.

A fourth airfield, seized by another invasion force against sniper opposition 150 miles to the southeast near Aitape, was pressed into service less than 48 hours after its capture. Fighters and troop transport planes landed there yesterday.

Thousands of invading troops, the bulk of them Americans, were landed at three beachheads Saturday, protected by the guns and dive bombers of a naval armada which Adm. Chester W. Nimitz credits with wiping out 101 Nipponese planes, all but 13 on the ground.

Reports today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur and advices from the field by Associated Press war correspondents told of a steamroller, impeded largely by the terrain, overrunning territory within bombing range of the Philippines.

No Organized Resistance

Nowhere in the Hollandia area, less than 1,200 miles from Mindanao, was there any word of organized fighting by the 14,000 Japanese estimated to comprise the defending force.

On the west bank, American soldiers, last reported within five miles of the main Hollandia airfield, told AP Correspondent Murlin Spencer some Japanese "didn't even have guns." This invading force, landed at Tanahmerah bay, had moved six miles southeast by Sunday afternoon.

On the east flank, red mud which caked the yanks from head to foot was the chief deterring factor in a mile and one-half push from Humboldt bay into the wreckage of Hollandia village Sunday.

AP Correspondent Asahel Bush, writing his dispatch amidst the ruins of the community's 150 buildings, said only the sprawling bodies of dead enemy sharpshooters were found after naval guns, dive bombers and mountain mortar raked the village.

Jap Garrison Flees

At Aitape, the story was the same. The enemy garrison of between 500 and 1,000 fled, leaving 98 dead and a few prisoners around seized Tadji airfield. Australian royal airforce engineers worked at night under floodlights, disdainful of the enemy air arm, to repair the bomber and fighter strips while American troops moved on Aitape village five miles north.

"Landing craft brought a never ending flow of troops and supplies to the beachhead from Liberty ships and transports," reported AP Correspondent Spencer Davis.

At each expanding perimeter from Aitape to Hollandia, bulldozers and tractors tore into the jungle, building roads for transporting the supplies piling up on the beaches.

If the Japanese in the Hollandia

Marion Soldier Kills Three Japs, Given Silver Star

Tech Sgt. Harry Beam, son of Mrs. Edward Landon of 207 Flos avenue and former resident of Ashley, is shown above after receiving the Silver Star medal from Maj. Gen. R. G. Breene, commanding general, according to a report from the 25th Infantry Division in the South Pacific area. The following citation accompanied the award: "Technical sergeant, infantry, U. S. Army, for gallantry in action at Vella LaVella, Solomon Islands, where he aggressively killed three Japanese with quick and accurate fire, held his squad as a covering force for a platoon's withdrawal, and then personally covered the safe withdrawal of his squad members on September 10, 1943." A complete account of the citation and the award was printed in The Star on March 23 when the family was notified.

MARION WOMAN GIVEN SENTENCE

Convicted on Charge of Illegal Sale of Gasoline Coupons.

Mrs. Ella W. Birkett, 10, of Sharp street was sentenced to a year in federal prison at Toledo today, The Associated Press reported.

She had been convicted on a charge of illegal sale of gasoline ration coupons. Sentence was passed by Judge Frank L. Kloeb.

Mrs. Birkett was employed at the Marion Engineer Depot as a messenger, and in connection with her work had access to the mails and was responsible for distributing some supplies, including coupons.

Marion county ration officials said coupons disappeared at intervals over a period of weeks and subsequently specially marked coupons were sent through a special investigator, leading to Mrs. Birkett's arrest.

She had been employed at the depot about three months.

PLANE FALLS IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL, April 25 — A twin-engined bomber crashed into a block of buildings in the commercial district today and burst into flames. The Canadian Press said as many as 15 persons may have been killed.

GREATEST AIR OFFENSIVE IN ELEVENTH DAY

Hammer Airdromes in France and Other Planes Penetrate Into Germany.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, April 25—Well over 1,000 American bombers and fighters bombarded three German airfields in France today, the 11th consecutive day of the war's greatest aerial offensive. The German radio said other allied raiders had penetrated into the southern sector of the reich.

A preliminary announcement of daylight activity, which appeared again to be on a gigantic scale, said Fortresses and Liberators from Britain smashed at German airdromes at Nancy, Metz and Dijon in the continuing all-out effort to humble Hitler's air forces ahead of the western invasion.

The daylight attacks followed attacks last night by probably 1,000 planes of the RAF which blasted industrial Munich and Karlsruhe.

In a reconnaissance report on the Munich raid the air ministry said whole blocks of buildings were left ablaze in the city Hitler converted from a Nazi shrine to an aircraft center and the heart of an important railway system. Smoke rose four miles as scattered fires merged into one glowing core.

Planes Destroyed On Ground

American airmen back from Metz said at least 40 planes, mostly fighters, parked on the ground there were plastered with bombs and there was no fighter opposition. The raiders of Nancy also caught German aircraft parked on the ground.

While the heavies and their escort thundered into eastern France American Marauders and Havocs with British Bostons attacked military objectives in northern France which have been pounded repeatedly in recent days by every type of daylight raider based in Britain.

Waves of planes of all types drove forward the campaign that has poured 40,000 to 50,000 tons of explosives on Hitler's war machine since mid-April, and shortly before noon the German radio reported strong bomber formations over the southern, western and southwestern portions of the reich.

Thirty British planes were lost last night in heavy blows aimed at factories and communications in Karlsruhe and Munich. Mosquito planes hit Duesseldorf and other raiders pounded the rail depot at Chambly 20 miles north of Paris, a link in the battered rail network supplying the German Atlantic wall. Mines also were laid in enemy waters.

Large Fires in Munich

Reconnaissance showed fires spreading over a large area of Munich an hour after the main bomber force had left, the air ministry said, and the attacks there and at Karlsruhe 150 miles to the southwest were "well concentrated." The raid into Germany was described as "in very great strength."

The RAF night bombers struck following Monday's record concerted assaults by more than 3,000 bombers and fighters from Britain and Italy against factories and airdromes at Munich, Friedrichshafen, Bucharest, Ploesti and Belgrade, which also tore new gaps in Nazi fighter strength.

The Monday armadas from Britain sent down 103 German planes in air combat and wrecked 40 more aground for a toll of 152, against losses of 38 bombers and 17 fighters.

Karlsruhe, big Rhineland industrial city (population 145,000) 150 miles northwest of Munich, produces machinery, engines, locomotives, chemical products, and other war materials. It last was hit by the RAF in September, 1942.

Munich, Nazi party birthplace, is the fourth largest city in Germany (population 828,000) and a prime manufacturing and communications center.

Some 4,000 tons of bombs were rained on Nazi targets yesterday in the blows from the west and south.

Kelly Given Hero Welcome

'Commando' Comes Home to "Mom" and Shawano St. in Pittsburgh.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, April 25 — Shawano street and "Mom" Kelly took Commando" Kelly to their hearts today.

Tech Sgt. Charles Edward Kelly back on furlough from his exploits in the Italian campaign which won for him the congressional medal of honor, rested in the comforts of home after a mom demonstration of greeting that lasted late into the night.

The slight, shy, ruddy-faced hero, credited with eliminating 30 Nazis in one of this war's most sensational actions, dodged friends and admirers "just to catch up on some sleep and see the Mom."

Police guarded the entrance to his unpretentious home in Pittsburgh's Dutchtown" sector while he did so.

Mayor Cornelius Scully met the fighting Irishman at his home and offered him and his family an expensive suite in a downtown hotel but the "commando" refused very courteously:

"This is good enough for Mom, and it's good enough for me."

While hundreds cheered, Mrs. Rose Kelly, a widow, with her eight other sons, met the hero at the county airport upon his arrival hours late, from Washington. Mrs. Kelly choked back tears as she embraced her boy.

The greetings for the soldier was so lusty that in the crush at the airport Mrs. Kelly's new veiled, orchid hat was knocked from her head and Kelly himself was nearly pushed off his feet as his eight brothers rushed down a ramp to meet him.

"Where do you want to go, Charley?" someone yelled.

"Home!" yelled "Commando."

Picture Indicates Strength of U. S. Force at Marshalls

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 25 — The first numerical indication of the overwhelming naval power the United States threw against the Japanese in the seizure of key islands in the Marshalls appeared today in an unusual photograph released by the Navy.

Taken from the air and covering a vast expanse of lagoon, the picture shows nine aircraft carriers and 12 battleships in addition to a multitude of supporting ships—cruisers, destroyers, supply vessels. More than 40 vessels are discernible within the area covered by the camera. And the official caption says this is "part" of the task force.

Volunteers Urgently Needed To Prepare Surgical Dressings

If Marion's quota of surgical dressings is to reach hospitals on schedule where the wounded of the armed forces are being cared for, more help will be needed, and needed immediately at the Red Cross Surgical dressings center, a check on attendance at the afternoon and evening work sessions show.

"We have an unusually large quota on hand and a large one also is enroute," Mrs. Ruth Lawson, chairman of the surgical dressings committee said today, in appealing for more women to donate their time and work to this major project. With more and more men going into service, and the number of wounded men increasing daily, the need for surgical dressings is most urgent, she points out.

The surgical dressings center in the Elks' buildings is open each afternoon, Monday through Friday and on Monday and Friday nights each week. All women are asked to help with this very urgent and greatly needed service.

Plane Crashes in Montreal

Big Liberator Crashes Into Buildings; Several People Reported Killed.

By The Associated Press

MONTREAL, April 25 — An RAF bomber exploded and crashed today in a block of old brick dwellings in downtown Montreal, leaving piles of flaming debris in which rescuers found nine bodies.

Three of some 14 dwellings in the block were flattened and others were damaged badly. Shrieks of horror arose in the area. Adults and children ran about the streets hunting for kinfolk. One woman screamed that she had lost two daughters.

A high air official said the bomber, operated by the RAF transport command, was a four-engined Liberator, though many of the eyewitnesses said a twin-engined craft had crashed. The official said two engines were buried in the debris, in addition to two which could be seen in the street.

The craft apparently carried a crew of five, one of whom was reported to have parachuted to safety.

Some eyewitnesses said the bomber exploded in the air, while others said it blew up after striking the building, sending fragments 50 feet into the air. Parts

Mr. Irey is an employe at the yards.

AIR FORCES DEPOT COMMANDER LEAVES

Maj. Shank Transferred; Capt. W. E. Hadeler Successor.

Major R. G. Shank, who has been commanding officer at the 825th Army Air Forces Specialized Depot at the Scioto Ordnance Plant since its inception nearly a year ago has been transferred to the Fairfield Air Service command headquarters at Patterson Field.

His successor at the depot here is Capt. William E. Hadeler, a Dayton man who has been supply officer here since the depot was begun. Capt. Hadeler, in active duty in the air force since 1942, came to Marion from the 825th Specialized Depot at Cincinnati, where he had served as supply officer.

First Lieut. Charles W. Teed has been transferred from Patterson Field to become supply officer at the Marion depot, succeeding Capt. Hadeler.

Son Is Born to Widow of Marion Soldier Killed in Action Feb. 18

A son, James Frederick, was born early last night in City hospital to Mrs. Donald Buckley of 652 East Center street, widow of First Sgt. Donald F. Buckley, who was killed in action while leading men against the enemy in the Italian war sector on Feb. 18, 1944. Mrs. Buckley, who was Miss Patricia Myers before her marriage, has another son, John, aged 22 months.

Sgt. Buckley was killed when a piece of shrapnel struck him in the neck as he was riding in a jeep at the battle of Salerno and his death was almost instantaneous, according to information received by Mrs. Buckley and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Buckley of 652 East Center street. He was buried in the American cemetery at Salerno and his grave marked and registered, the family has been informed in letters received from his friends and commanding officers.

Sgt. Buckley's Christian life and performance of duty is praised in the letters received by the family since his death. The family has received a picture of his being decorated with a Silver Star for gallantry in action by Major General Keyes early in February. At that time also he received a citation for his gallantry. Mrs. Buckley recently received a purple heart, a duplicate of one sent by Sgt. Buckley, mailed on Feb. 8 and received about a week after the family was notified of his death.

Letters have been received from Sgt. Buckley's lieutenant, chaplain, captain and the general in command of his division. A letter from a Chinese boy with whom Sgt. Buckley had formed a close friendship disclosed that he had volunteered for training as a navigator on a bombing plane and was awaiting a call to return home for training. He had not informed his family of the anticipated trip home as he wished to surprise them, the letter states.

Sgt. Buckley was home last in July last year. He was 26 years old and entered the armed forces Oct. 1, 1942. He went overseas last August.

Mrs. Swanson had expressed belief she was the oldest American-born resident of the United States. One of her prized possessions was a birthday greeting from President Roosevelt.

37th Division Broke Jap Spririt in Blasting Best Tokyo Troops

This account of a futile Japanese attempt to breach the 37th division's lines on Bougainville was written by an army correspondent and distributed by The Associated Press.

WITH THE 37TH DIVISION ON BOUGAINVILLE—Ohio's battle tested 37th division blasted the enemy's fanatical belief in his own superiority in a brilliant counter attack last month that left hundreds of Japanese dead while the Americans lost only five men.

Until the March 23rd the lull in fighting at Bougainville continued, since the last great effort against the 37th (Buckeye) division's defenses, the Japanese Sixth division, and its reinforcements, had retired to reorganize its decimated ranks.

Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, commander of the Ohio division, ordered patrols to keep an eye on the enemy. He was not deceived by the quiet that had fallen over the front.

During the night of March 23-24, the Japanese again struck. Apparently the Japanese believed, in spite of their humiliating defeats of the past days, that they could, by sheer pressure of numbers, breach the 37th's defenses.

This attack, like the others, succeeded in forcing a limited penetration of our lines and in the taking of a few pill boxes. As before, the Buckeyes immediately counterattacked, supported by tankr, and by afternoon the lines had been restored.

That afternoon 310 Japanese corpses were found within our defenses. It was not possible to count those beyond the barbed wire. It is almost unbelievable, but it is a fact, that the total of Americans killed in this attack was five; such a disparity is difficult to comprehend until one has actually seen the blind, fanatical attacks of the Japanese in the face of withering fire. When the Nipponese soldier faces such operation he has no alternate plan.

Advance Over Bodies

He simply advances over the bodies of his comrades until he, too, is killed. The enemy dead before the 37th's front were so numerous that special burying parties from other units had to be hastily rounded up to accomplish burial by nightfall and before the expected next attack began. The

What About the Pre-Pearl Harbor Mother?

She's the Forgotten Woman—Yet Her Problems Are Often Greater Than Her Husband's.

By ARLENE WOLF
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK—What's happening to the pre-Pearl Harbor mother? Plenty! While the pre-Pearl Harbor father, facing induction, is sympathized with and talked about, his wife is frequently forgotten. But back home, she—and her children—still have to eat.

How is she managing on the government allotment—$50 for her, $30 for the first child, $20 for each additional one?

Social service agencies say she's "adjusting"—a word they use to cover most anything. They also say she is in a tight spot.

The Red Cross home service, here, reports steadily increasing appeals since January 1. Frequently fathers come in even before induction for help in working out family finances.

To the poor, the government allotment often represents an increase in income. The rich don't have to worry. But the wife whose husband used to make a comfortable wage is wrenched out of her normal way of life. She is faced with rearing her children on near-relief standards, or delegating someone else to bring them up while she takes a job.

Near-relief standards pinch the wives of servicemen.

Mrs. X, the pre-Pearl Harbor mother, finds the going much harder than her younger sister, who married and had a child after the war began. Mrs. X planned life on a permanent peace basis, notes the Rev. John Donovan of Catholic Charities. She has an established home, which she wants to keep intact until her husband comes back. She may have furniture bought on the installment plan, or a home with a mortgage.

When mother's away, children may get into trouble.

The younger service wife never had such a set-up. If she had a job, it was easy to keep on working. In most cases, she can now live with her parents. If she has a baby, grandma's probably taking care of it.

Social service spokesmen say this is what the typical pre-Pearl Harbor mother has to face.

Her parents can't help. They're older, and often need help themselves.

Her children are of school age, and can't be deposited in day care centers while mother works.

Mother's older, too—and probably hasn't worked outside her home for years. It's hard for her to turn suddenly into the family breadwinner.

"The financial problem can be met," says Frances Taussig, executive director of Jewish Social Services. "But the psychological problem—the feeling of deprivation, resentment and inadequacy—is a large one."

Social workers don't pretend that any solution is ideal, because each presents additional problems.

They say the mother can go to work—and try to find someone to take care of her children, or let them run loose after school and possibly turn into delinquents. There aren't nearly enough after-school centers for all the children of working mothers.

She can double up with friends or relatives—and break up the home she wants to keep intact.

She can reduce her living standard, and live on the government allotment. But Anna Kempshall, director of family service at Community Service society, says "it takes terrific planning to do it."

Allotment budgets don't allow for replacement of worn clothing, medical or dental care, or for the thousand and one expenses that always crop up wherever there are children.

"I couldn't keep the children in the house all winter," one mother declared. "So I bought them snow suits. Now I can't pay the rent."

No public relief agency will help her, because her allotment is more than the relief budget. But, as another social worker points out, relief recipients are often better off, because they can depend on public assistance for contingencies the service wife can't mete. No private agency has the funds, either.

Part-time work, many experts say, is the best solution.

The best solution? A part-time job, which brings the pre-Pearl Harbor mother home in time to meet the children after school—many authorities believe.

Engineer Depot Men To Be at Food Conference

Lt. E. R. Ostergren, mess officer at the Marion Engineering Depot, and Charles Gallagher, manager of the cafeteria, will attend an army food conference at the Netherlands-Plaza Hotel in Cincinnati on Thursday, May 4.

The conference is being held by nearly 300 officers and civilians responsible for the proper feeding of millions of soldiers and war workers in the middle west. Speakers will be high army officials and civilian consultants. Demonstration of army rations, cooking equipment and methods, and conservation measures will illustrate the aim of the army's food program which is the improvement of army meals and the reduction of food waste. The major objective of the food service program is to make sure every soldier is provided with "a palatable, adequate and well-balanced diet" and to cut food wastage to a minimum.

Fishing Good At Baccarat Lake

Proof to all Izaak Walton followers that fish are biting at Baccarat lake near Richwood was given this week when a bass weighing five pounds, two ounces, was hooked there by Dick McClain, 14, of 312 Latourette street. Dick is the grandson of W. D. Street of 344 Latourette street and is a Star paper carrier. His grandfather caught three bass weighing four and three-quarters, three and three-quarters, and two and three-quarters pounds each, and three catfish, each weighing one pound. William Scott, vocational instructor at Thomas Edison school, who was in the party, caught several large catfish.

Cedar chests were first made in Virginia.

Son of Former Marion Residents Commissioned

Ferrel V. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M Smith of Norwood, O., formerly of 298 Hane avenue, graduated from Midland Army Air Field, Tex., and was commissioned second lieutenant. He received his wings and commission on April 8 and is now spending a 15-day furlough with his parents in Norwood, after which he will report to Lincoln, Neb. Lt Smith accompanied his parents here over the week-end when they visited with friends and relatives in Marion.

Burned out in 3 days

IN training camps, soldiers' shoes last three or four months —but in actual combat, many troops burn out shoes in three days!

Although our troops get the best footwear, clothing and equipment, the wear and tear of modern war is astounding. Shoes are only one of thousands of items that must be supplied every day in ever increasing quantities. And the big fight is only beginning.

As more and more of our men go into action, the problem of keeping them supplied and equipped will double and triple.

And carrying these materials to our troops will become a bigger and bigger job every day for Erie and other American Railroads.

There will be a bigger job ahead, too, for every American!

With our war machine going into high gear, it will be our job to keep it running at full speed until victory is won.

But, with your continued help and the cooperation of shippers and government agencies, Erie and other American Railroads will keep 'em rolling to deliver whatever is needed to finish the job.

HELP WIN THE BATTLE OF TRANSPORTATION

Do war work and get excellent pay working for the Erie. Both skilled and unskilled workers are needed immediately to keep supplies flowing to the battle-front. Apply to the nearest Erie office or the Railroad Retirement Board.

ABOUT ANYTHING

In and Around Marion

Crowd Watching

Spring is finally here and citizens have taken up a favorite outdoor sport again where they left off last fall. Equipment needed for the "game" includes only a little patience and plenty of time. If you're lucky enough to find a parking space near the center of the business district, the best time to participate is on a Friday night. Then you can sit and watch the people go by. It's surprising how many of your friends you can see in a short time. Just one caution—don't follow the example of one observing woman who became so interested in the passing parade that she forgot to watch the time and promptly got a ticket for parking by a meter showing the red flag.

Mixed-Up Wishes

Speaking of spring, isn't it strange the way we long for it, sigh about the cold, rainy days that keep us out of our gardens and then, bang—it's here. And with it gardens to spade, grass to cut, hedges to trim, seeds to plant and so on and on until we almost wish it were winter again so we could long for spring in peace.

Button Snatcher

Losing one's buttons these days is no idle jest, particularly if they are nice pearl ones and adorn your very good looking coat. That is just what happened to a patron of the senior class play recently when she hung her coat over the rest in the theater. The buttons weren't yanked off, nor were they lost and just came off of their own accord—they were cut off very neatly without marring the cloth in the least. In addition to savoring a bit of downright meanness, the culprit has left the owner right out in the cold since they can't be replaced, at least for the duration.

Wartime Scene

Six sailor lads, white duffel bags slung over left shoulders, striding down Center street singing "Anchors Aweigh, My Lads." Early evening gadabouts watched, then turned away smiling affectionately.

Meeting a Challenge

Ever since Adam and Eve's children were growing up the older folk have said the younger generation is going to rack and ruin. And every so often, down through the years, a challenge has come along which gave the young folks a chance to show their elders what stuff they're made of. Many adults in Marion right now are thrilled at the establishment of Club Co-ed.

Stranded

High schools have always been a setting for good natured pranks but one came to light the other day that tops any heard recently. It seems there is a small chap at one of the Marion high schools who is carried around by the larger fellows whenever the occasion permits. During one of the between-period times the small one was caught in the locker room jam and was boosted to the top of the lockers. The period bell rang and there he sat unable to get down until help arrived.

School Play Oddities

The recent production of the Harding High senior class play revived a procession of memories in the minds of many of the hundreds of persons who saw it. Many in the audiences recalled vivid experiences connected with high school dramatic activities.

One member of The Star editorial department staff, for example, had a high school play role in which he was killed on the stage. He died a noble death, saw the curtain start to descend and, after waiting a proper length of time, arose to a sitting position and started to get up. To his horror, he found the curtain had stuck about three feet off the stage floor. This unscheduled bit virtually stole the show.

One of the unscheduled touches of comedy in the Harding play this year was smoothed over so nicely by the quick wits of the actors that it almost went unnoticed, although others on the stage had difficulty choking back peals of laughter. It came in the latter part of the first act when June Porer, as Mrs. Sylvester, asked that the dinner bell be rung to sound a call for lunch. There was a brief lapse due to the fact the bell had not been put on the stage, but Miss Porter, like a regular trouper, quickly improvised enough lines to get around the situation. "Call them to lunch," she said gaily to one of the boys in the cast, and he, sizing up the situation quickly, called lustily and the show went on with scarcely a ripple of interruption.

That no doubt recalled dozens of incidents in which telephone bells fail to ring at the right time in school plays, or in which whistles and other sound effects fail to sound at the right time. In a school play at Mt. Gilead about 16 years ago, the student in charge of properties had comparatively few chores, but one of them was to ring the telephone bell a couple times. The first time for the bell ringing arrived and the button was pushed but there was no ring. The members of the cast carried on, answering the phone although it had not sunded, and the play went on smoothly—until the bell started ringing belatedly when repair workers got it fixed and unthinkingly gave the buzzer a push to see if it would work.

Haircut Emotions

There comes a time every so often when you look in a mirror and think, "I simply must get a haircut. "I've never looked so shaggy and if I don't get it soon I'll either have to buy a violin or a dog license." So you get a haircut. Before you looked shaggy but after—wow! Your neck has stretched at least a foot and your ears have extended nine inches farther and flap merrily in the breeze. Think nothing of it folks, everyone else experiences the same sensation and after all you do have to have your ears lowered regularly.

Colorful Male Attire

Ladies are supposed to be the offenders when it comes to wearing screwy color combinations, but have you taken a good look at men's neckties and socks this season? If your eyesight is a little dim you are still O. K. as long as you have your hearing. Some of the patterns are so jumbled and the colors so loud you can hear 'hear' them for blocks.

Bullet Punctures Speedily Closed in New Radiator

By The Associated Press

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — The radiator division of Winchester has developed a new cartridge-core radiator, each tube as easily replaceable as leads in an automatic pencil.

A pilot, forced down with a bullet-riddled radiator, recently soldered on a tin can patch and winged home an hour later.

TWO OHIOANS GIVEN FEDERAL PRISON TERMS

Contractor, 72, and Bookkeeper, 70, Get Income Tax Sentences.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 25—T. D. Van Camp, 72, widely known Ohio road contractor, yesterday was fined $10,000 and sentenced to six months in prison on a charge of income tax invasion. Van Camp's home is in Williamsport.

John A. Kidd, 70-year-old bookkeeper for Van Camp, was fined $2,000 and given six months on a similar charge.

They had pleaded guilty to an indictment returned in 1942 charging the two evaded a total of $35,971 in 1935-37 taxes, and accusing them of conspiracy. They admitted the charges after U. S. Judge Mell G. Underwood rejected an application for a plea of nolle contendre, but they recently asked that the guilty pleas be changed to innocence.

Judge Underwood rejected that application today and passed sentence. He remarked from the bench that while the men were of considerable age, nonetheless they were before him on guilty pleas.

Allies Scoff at Nazi Boast of Secret Invasion Weapons

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — Allied military chiefs aren't worried over Nazi "secret weapons" of invasion.

"If the Germans had anything up their sleeve, they'd use it now against us or the Russians before they get their brains beaten out," said one ranking official. "Military tacticians in mechanized war don't wait to see the white of enemy eyes."

The Germans are expected to use shore defense rockets, glider bombs, possibly radio-controlled planes, but the Allied command scoffs at their effectiveness. Shore-based rockets are less accurate than artillery and radio-controlled planes and gliders are useless if the control-planes are downed by expected Allied air superiority.

Much more formidable but hardly "secret" are those obstacles which invasion forces expect to encounter:

Underwater barbed wire to trap men leaping from landing craft.

Land mines—some exploding on contact, others detonated from distant observation points.

Concrete emplacements for machine gun nests on every likely beach.

Big guns protected by yard after yard of reinforced concrete ringing every strategic harbor and beachhead.

Behind these will be the traditional German defense in depth with mines, pillboxes and gun emplacements repeated for miles inland.

BLACKFACE WEDDING

By International News Service

OAKMONT, Pa. — Irene Gonsowski and William G. Bostjanick wanted to be married, but the squire wasn't in his office. He was one of the end men in the Lions club minstrel show at Oakmont High school. So the couple were married in the school corridor before the blacked-out cast, with the janitor as witness. The blackfaced squire, attired in checked waistcoat, red and white trousers and silver shoes, assured the anxious couple that the ceremony was legal despite the setting.

WOUNDED MARION CO. SOLDIER REACHES U. S.

Lt. Robert Lindsay Now in Coral Gable, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Lindsay of the Prospect pike have received word that their son, Lt. Robert Lindsay, who was injured Dec. 30 in India, has returned to the states and is in Coral Gable, Fla., receiving treatment in the Army air force hospital there.

A telegram informing them of their son's return to the states was received from the war department last week with the statement that he would get in touch with them as soon as he arrived. A letter from the young man himself arrived the same day, informing his parents that probably by the time they received the letter he would already have landed.

A phone call from Miami, Fla., came through Friday at 4:30 a. m. from Lt. Lindsay and Sunday a wire naming the Florida hospital as his present address was received.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay plan to go to their son as soon as word is sent informing them that the Florida station will be his base for the present convalescent period.

Extent of his injuries was still unknown but Mrs. Lindsay said he still was to receive treatment for a serious arm injury.

Lt. Lindsay enlisted in the air corps in June 1942 and was ordered overseas the following June. He was stationed in India as transport pilot at the time his injuries were suffered.

4-F WORK OR DRAFT MEASURE IS URGED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 25—Advocating a new work-or-be-drafted law that would cover 4-Fs and men up to 45 who refuse to take essential jobs, Senator Brewster (R-Me.) today declared congress must move promptly to halt an "alarming" labor turnover in industry.

Brewster joined with Senator Bailey (D-N.C.) in sponsoring a bill which would:

1. "Freeze" men between 18 and 45 in essential work by requiring them to get local draft board approval before taking other jobs. If they shifted without draft board approval, they would be subject to immediate induction.

2. Empower selective service to conscript 4-Fs or any other registrants up to age 45 for war-essential jobs whenever a government manpower committee found manpower needs could be filled in no other way.

Brewster said in a statement the plan would halt labor hoarding and "go a long way" toward forcing workers out of non-essential jobs and into war-supporting industries.

The labor "freeze" feature would apply to industry the principle previously adopted by congress to keep necessary workers on the farms, he added.

Under the present law, farm workers become subject to induction if they take other employment and Brewster said this provision had been effective in keeping 1,700,000 agricultural workers on the farm.

Apparently referring to previous organized labor opposition to conscription of workers, Brewster said "labor should not object to a plan that will enable unions to retain many of their members who otherwise would be shifting around."

Crawford Blames Cox for Loss of Position

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, April 25—Calvin Crawford, U. S. district attorney, said he was "not reappointed * * * because former Gov. James M. Cox has demanded that I be replaced."

Crawford's statement followed an announcement yesterday that Byron Harlan had been appointed subject to confirmation by the U. S. senate.

He said his reappointment had been recommended by his party, judges, lawyers and laymen and that "officials of the department of justice * * * expressed their good will and approval."

He added "I am by no means the only object of his (Cox's) displeasure. All of us together whom he has sought to banish make up quite a goodly company. For it is his habit to decree the defeat of party leaders who do not chance to please him. * * *"

13 Fined and Sentenced on Charges of Gambling

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., April 25—Common Pleas Judge Lehr Fess yesterday imposed jail or workhouse sentences, plus fines, on 13 Toledo men who pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to violate the state gambling laws in connection with the operation of the Club Devon and Webster Inn in Lucas county.

Heaviest sentences went to Ben Aronoff, ordered to serve 150 days in jail and fined $3,500 and his brother, Joe, sentenced to 120 days in the workhouse and fined $3,500.

REA WINS RIGHT TO BID ON UTILITY

By The Associated Press

LANCASTER, O., April 25—The right of a rural cooperative to bid on the purchase of a privately owned electric company was upheld yesterday by Common Pleas Judge Frank M. Acton.

Judge Acton dissolved a temporary order which restrained the South-Central Rural Electric Cooperative, Inc., from bidding for the $2,115,000 Midland Light & Power Co., of Canal Winchester.

The suit to prevent the cooperative from bidding on the property was filed by Leo Mambourg, a Fayette county farmer and member of the Co-Op, and the city of Canal Winchester. The city claimed all customers of the Midland firm would have to become members of the South-Central if it bought the utility.

Mambourg contended the Co-Op would be removed from the non-profit organization category if it entered the private utility field.

The Union Rural Electric Cooperative and the Highland County Rural Electric Cooperative also have bid on the property. Bids were to be opened today in New York.

The Midland company serves 8,000 customers in Fairfield, Ross, Pickaway, Franklin, Hocking and Madison counties.

VOTE ANTI-HATRED LAW
By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, April 25—A called anti-class hatred ordinance was adopted unanimously last night by city council. The ordinance requires publishers or distributors of printed matter relating to "expose any individual, any racial or religious group to hatred, contempt, ridicule or obloquy" to identify themselves in the literature.

PLAN BEFORE YOU PLANT

GOOD GARDENS are planned gardens. Only by planning can you have the right amount—for eating and for preserving—so that the family's food needs may be adequately met all summer and through the winter. And figure on successive planting to replace early crops.

Plan to grow the vegetables that assure the maximum of Vitamins A and C, and the minerals, lime and iron. That means, place most of your reliance on green and leafy vegetables, yellow vegetables, and tomatoes. Our gardens can, and should, produce more spinach, lettuce, broccoli, endive, turnip greens, cabbage, collards, kale, as well as turnips, beets, salsify and root crops to store for winter use.

Here are several good rules to follow:

Use the best soil available, and use a good fertilizer; soak, don't sprinkle, when watering is required; don't let the weeds get ahead of you; and exterminate insects ruthlessly. Above all, avoid a shady spot for your garden. It will need plenty of sunshine.

For other hints and suggestions, call on your local Victory Garden Committee—or your state agricultural college. They will be glad to help you.

OHIO LOSES FOURTH OF SCHOOL TEACHERS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 25—Dr. [illegible] Patterson, head of the [illegible] bureau of the Ohio [illegible] versity college of educa[illegible] calls a "tragic situation" [illegible] school children unless [illegible] of teachers can be found [illegible] fall.

[illegible] has become the teach[illegible]ge in the state, Dr. Patterson said, "the reservoir of available candidates for even emergency certificates is nearly empty."

He said more than 3,000 emergency certificates were issued for the present school year but a survey by the state department of education has shown more than 4,000 more teachers will leave their jobs before next September.

A report by Harold J. Bowers, state supervisor of teacher education and certification, showed Ohio already has lost more than 10,000 teachers since Pearl Harbor. That figure represents one-fourth of the total number normally employed.

During World War I, farm income doubled, reaching 17 billion dollars, even though the armed forces and war industries took more than a million men from farms.

ELKS SPONSOR WAR ESSAYS

Contest on Aids to War Effort Open to 7th and 8th Grades.

Students in the seventh and eighth grades of public and parochial schools in Marion will have an opportunity to try for war bond prizes in an essay contest on "My Part in Winning the War," sponsored by the Ohio Elks association and local Elks lodges in cooperation with the department of information of the regional OPA office.

W. K. Tobin, chairman of the contest in Marion being held under the sponsorship of Marion Lodge No. 32, B. P. O. E., said booklets containing possible material for essays are available at the lodge rooms above the Ohio theater or by writing to the Office of Price Administration, Columbus, O.

Based on ways to help with winning the war, the essays should be concerned with ways civilians can assist in the war effort. The booklet entitled, "My Part in Winning the War" is centered on proper use of ration points, conservation of vital foods and materials, purchase of war bonds, scrap salvage and other jobs to be done in order to help the war effort. The contest booklet explains these things in terms understandable to anyone and will be of help in giving students ideas upon which to build their themes. Although the booklets are recommended, information gathered from other sources will not disqualify entries.

Essays must be limited to 800 words and should be typewritten or written in ink. They must be submitted to school principals or superintendents in a sealed envelope. On the essay itself must be found the contestant's full name, address, name of school, contestant's grade and the signature of the school superintendent or principal.

May 20 Deadline

May 20 is the deadline for getting the essays to the offices of superintendents or principals who will deliver them to the local Elks lodge. Judges in the state contest will take into consideration knowledge of the subject, accuracy of statement, clearness of expression, grammar and spelling, composition and neatness.

Prizes are war bonds and stamps in the following evaluations: first prize, $100 war bond; second, $50 war bond; third, $25 war bond; fourth, $15 in war stamps; fifth, $10 in war stamps. Twenty prizes of $5 each in war stamps will complete the list of awards. Winners will be announced June 15 through newspapers.

HOMOGENIZED VITAMIN D MILK!

LOOKS AND TASTES BETTER!
Rich, appetizing color that tempts you to drink a big glass right now! Creamy, delicious flavor that's just the same, from the first drop to the very last! And you'll be surprised to discover how much better it makes breakfast food taste—gives it that zestful extra goodness that makes breakfast time a pleasure, and starts you out for the day full of pep!

EXTRA "SUNSHINE" VITAMINS!
Every single quart is fortified with 400 units of vitamin D, the "sunshine" vitamin, so necessary for growth and health. This is especially important to children, because it promotes development of straight, sturdy bones and sound teeth. That's why so many doctors recommend Borden's Homogenized Vitamin D Milk!

IT'S REAL ECONOMY, TOO!
No more pouring off the rich, creamy part of the milk with the first serving, leaving the rest to go to waste! No more coaxing Junior to drain his glass! The even texture and tempting flavor of the "milk with the cream line all the way down" mean that you won't waste a single drop of it. Naturally, it's much better for cooking, too!

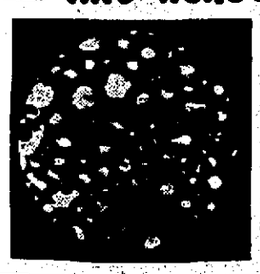
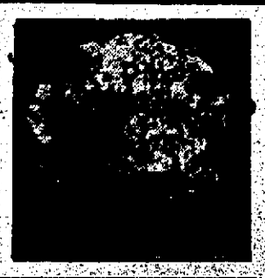
AND HERE'S WHY!


This is a microphotograph of high-quality milk, just as it comes from the cow. Notice the large globules of butterfat. In ordinary milk these globules separate quickly and rise to the top of the bottle, forming a layer of cream, and leaving "skim milk" below.


This microphotograph shows the same milk after homogenization. Nothing is added, nothing is taken away—it's the same pure wholesome milk—but the fat globules are broken into tiny particles and "suspended" throughout all of the milk. Consequently, cream [illegible]

Volunteers-or-Else Principle

IT IS apparent from the presentation of the case for national service legislation by Secretaries Stimson, Knox and Adm. Land that their immediate objective is some means of handling acute labor shortages in specific industries and areas. The full text of their statement shows that they are not interested in the general application of the law.

"It is our thought," they say, "that the war work service act should first provide for the recruiting of voluntary workers before the selective service principle is invoked. When a given war industry, in a given locality, is found suffering from a labor shortage, that fact should be proclaimed in a call for volunteers to fill the shortage. Emphatically, the law must prevent depletion in the ranks of other essential industries to man the one in distress, because one of the greatest of present difficulties is the excessive turnover in employment . . . In case sufficient volunteers do not appear in answer to the call, then the national selective service principle must be invoked to supply the essential need."

Concluding the statement, the three officials say: "From the experience of our allies it can be predicted that once the obligation to serve is made a duty by law the volunteers will come forward." They do not explain, however, how the alternative to volunteer service would work, and that is the weakness of all presentations of the case for national service. The proponents are in the unconvincing attitude of promoting a law they say they hope they wouldn't use, but they do not explain what would happen if they were disappointed.

Water Pincers

OPENING of an Allied naval campaign in the Indian ocean suggests one immediate, one long-range objective. The immediate objective is to cut Japan's naval supply line past Singapore and through the Straits of Malacca to Burma. The long-range objective is to clear the way from the Indian ocean past Singapore to the South China sea, and there to effect naval junction with the U. S. forces driving eastward through the Truk islands to the Philippines. It is only the beginning of a pattern of grand strategy, but if the Allies have not overestimated Japanese shipping losses it may be followed up with more alacrity than would have seemed possible a year ago. The ultimate aim must be to clear the seas of Japanese naval power throughout the whole vast area of the Netherlands East Indies, to capture the Philippines and establish military bases in South China—a campaign of such magnitude that it is almost beyond comprehension. But again, it is helpful to remember that a year ago even such a beginning as has been made was almost beyond comprehension.

Party Government

THE lip service which is given to the two-party system of government means something when steps are taken to make it work better.

Sen. Taft, chairman of the senate's Republican steering committee, who recently described a plan being considered by the committee to revise and modernize the senate committee system, has announced another important detail of his organization's operation.

The senate minority will retain a professional historian, George H. H. Smith, to act as research consultant. It will be his function to coordinate the proposals of the minority's senate members, to assure continuity of direction and purpose in legislation on foreign policy, administrative reorganization, taxes, post-war communications and related subjects.

The idea is not new. It has appeared in every recent proposal to improve legislative efficiency and had been sanctioned by the senate, though no appointment was made previously. Congressmen, confronted with a horde of administrative specialists, long have been aware of their own need for more guidance in specialized fields. Unless legislators have easy access to experts in taxation, for instance, they are at a disadvantage in handling treasury department recommendations. Their public hearings, while they furnish opinions and give spokesmen for many viewpoints a chance to be heard, do not furnish the continuing guidance.

The two-party system will survive according to its ability to do the job. The job will be done better if Republicans in the senate follow through on their drive to increase their efficiency.

East-West Invasion

INVASION suspense is tightened in Germany and will be tightened in the United States and Great Britain, also, when more is known of Russian preparations for the opening of a summer offensive, presumably timed to coincide with the cross-channel attack from England. German reports now mention information of massive groupings of Russian forces in the area east of Lwow, where the Russians have driven their salient into Poland. The German press and radio are preparing the people for simultaneous offensives; it is no longer the Russian offensive in the Balkans that is feared, but the coming Russian offensive through Poland, threatening Germany from the east at the same moment that the massive operations from England threaten it from the west.

News Behind the News

Selection of Warren as G.O.P. Keynoter Quietly Engineered by Spangler.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 25—The surprise designation of California's governor Warren as keynoted (spokesman) for the Republican presidential convention has been generally attributed to Governor Dewey. Actually it was conceived and engineered by National Chairman Harrison Spangler.

The idea had not occurred to anyone else. Political writers were speculating on Clare Luce, Senator Vandenberg, Leader Martin and many another. Mr. Spangler said nothing, got Warren's private consent, and tiptoed to Chicago.

There the news-men deduced by good logic that Vandenberg was the best bet, or that Martin would be it, because the custom of both parties has been to choose a congressman so intimately connected with national questions as to be able to speak carefully.

Proposed Quietly

The logic of a fresh start with a new figure outside Washington, who might furnish a new slant in leadership was carried into the arrangements committee meeting by Spangler in a quiet way so as not to become involved in personal squabbles between managers of the publicized claimants. Twelve were finally nominated for the job, still without any public mention of Warren.

Then Spangler brought forward his man, first asked the Ohio Bricker committeewoman, Mrs. Catherine Kennedy Brown what she thought, then Dewey's man, Russell Sprague. Both were pleased with Warren.

That ended the fights, including the most threatening one in behalf of Mrs. Luce by the Connecticut Willkie man on the committee. Not even a vote was taken to register dissent.

Mrs. Luce will adress the convention otherwise, at the personal invitation of Mr. Spangler, who has the right of making that kind of invitation on his own authority.

Vice Presidential Chances

Some commentators have interpreted the Warren choice as a victory for the Republican governors over the Republican senators, but it is difficult to sustain that conclusion in view of the way the choice came about and the unanimity. The Republicans are obviously doing things differently this time.

This is the second dove feather to be plucked for his cap by Mr. Spangler, who also negotiated a unanimity that was supposed to be impossible in the foreign policy declaration at Mackinac.

Some say this action now eliminates Warren as the leading vice presidential prospect on a Dewey ticket; others that it pushes him into the limelight for just such a choice, as a matter of fact, it makes no difference.

Those who think Warren is eliminated count entirely on the precedent that no Republican keynoter has ever gained a place on the ticket. But it is apparent the Republicans have new life, and are not letting precedent make their decisions. Warren was the favorite before, still is.

MacArthur Fading

In all this, the MacArthur boom seems to be running down the fatal path of the Willkie effort, namely toward getting more front page attention than actual consideration or delegates.

That MacArthur should have leadership along the line of his genius in any new Republican government seems to be the will of most Republicans around here. If they could get all their candidates into the picture of a new government that could be presented to the minds of the people as an alternative for this one, their campaign hopes and promises could be effectively dramatized.

For instance they could take Bricker, Warren, MacArthur, Stassen and others and present them alongside Dewey as what they have in mind in the way of government; Bricker, say, as attorney general, Warren as vice president, MacArthur as war secretary, Stassen as agriculture secretary. The effect might be more enlightening, impressive and convincing than a list of campaign promises.

Meanwhile it seems to me they have developed already the first national chairman who has been able to distinguish himself in party leadership since long before the New Deal and, in fact, further back than I can remember.

Today and Tomorrow

National Service Act To Back Up Big Invasion Push Is Urged.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

AS for guessing when the invasion will start and when the war will end, we had better ask ourselves whether we are sitting in the grandstands, laying our bets and waiting for the whistle to blow. Gen. Eisenhower and his staff will decide when to invade. But the American civilian population have a very big part to play in deciding when the war will end.

In its fundamentals the question is whether congress and the people take the view that Eisenhower's men must win, lose, or draw with the forces they now have. Undoubtedly they are great forces. But if they are a fixed quantity, then the enemy has everything to gain by taking every risk, fighting to the death at every pillbox and every street corner from the coast of Europe to Berlin. For if he knows that Eisenhow's force is just so big and no bigger and that there is not much else behind it, the enemy has every reason to fight on and to make us pay with the blood of our men for every foot of the soil of Europe.

The Germans are encircled and are cornered, but they still have hope. A fixed force, however formidable, is worth resisting on the great chance that if some part of the plan goes wrong, we shall lack the final punch to deliver the knockout blow. Many a man has gotten out of a hopeless fight by just managing to hang on and not to get knocked out because the other fellow did not have that last punch.

This is the tremendous danger which the invasion forces face, that they will come ashore, that they will move in, as in Italy, and then lack the reserves to push through to victory. If that happened this summer, we might well face a bloody stalemate and the need to try it all over again next season and with every plan we have made in Europe and in the Pacific thrown off schedule.

It is imperative, therefore, that once the invasion is launched, it should have behind it such reserves that the longer the enemy resists the greater will be the forces that come piling up against him. That will break him. He may withstand the first blow, but if the second is harder, not softer than the first, and the third harder than the second, he will have nothing left to fight for.

The fury of the attack must mount, and when it is indisputable to the German Army, who will know all the essential facts, that the attacks are on an ascending scale of violence and power, they will know that resistance is mere suicide. Whole armies and nations do not commit suicide.

This is the reason why our responsible military leaders are asking the American civilian population to back them up with a national war service act. There is no other way to tell our troops and to make it clear to the enemy that when the invasion begins it can never be stopped. We are simply not doing our duty if we leave matters where they now are, saying to our men and to our enemy that we shall fight it out with limited forces.

Mobilizing Everyone

It is as clear as daylight that the way to shorten the war decisively and conclusively is to mobilize the civilian population, men and women, so that there can be no question in anyone's mind that the attack has behind it waves of men and equipment.

We are a people more used to business than to war. An example from business will illustrate the point: there is a run on a bank, the depositors are drawing down the reserves. How do you stop the run? By feeding into the bank a new $100 for every $100 the depositors draw out? Not at all. You put all the resources of all the banks behind the threatened bank. The moment that is done, the depositors quit drawing on the reserves, the run stops, the panic is over. The fact that the reserves are unlimited means that they do not have to be drawn upon.

With the tremendous operations that are now preparing in Europe and also in the Pacific, no American civilian has the right to say to our military leaders that he can have the 4-F's but that is all.

The civilians who say that—be they officials of the Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers, the American Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations, or the Congress of the United States, are, in a matter of life and death for hundreds of thousands of Americans, in a matter of supreme importance to the nation, putting their personal views ahead of the judgment of the commanders who must conduct the battles.

Suppose these civilians, who know little of war, are wrong. Just think what we shall carry with us upon our consciences for the rest of our lives, if, when called upon to support the armies, we refused. No man will ever regret that in this fateful hour he did too much. He will never be forgiven if he does not do enough.

"SHORT CUT TO DUNKERQUE"

Cenorship in India—the Same Old Story

By Preston Grover.

THE sitdown protest of five British correspondents in India, announced last Sunday, is only the latest of many directed against a censorship that has been so difficult and complex during the past two years that many reporters at times have almost despaired of getting balanced news out of that theater.

Freshly arrived from India, this correspondent can report that the censorship of the latest Japanese operation in India has been to a great extent self-defeating.

In the few days I have been in America I have found more alarm here over the Japanese operation than is found among the best informed British and American circles in India.

Censorship in India and in China too, for that matter, is a business in which many hands have a share.

Here is an example of what goes on in India. A story is written about an American operation in the India theater. The American censor must pass on it. Then it must be submitted to a double-barreled British military censorship of the Southeast Asia command (SEAC) and out of the Indian army general headquarters.

It then must be scrutinized by a political censor from the government of India in the event it has the slightest political implication. And in India, the possibility of a story having political implication is both great and unpredictable.

ON behalf of the censors, it must be conceded they have a difficult job. Moreover, the difficulties have been multiplied by failure of any one command to take over direction of censorship. Some progress toward unity has been made in recent months.

This strange mixture of authority results in such things as this: A story will be approved by the Americans and by the SEAC censorship only to be stopped by general headquarters on the ground that its publication might frighten the Indians or create difficult local political problems. In vain foreign correspondents in India have argued that stories written for papers abroad need not be published in India, so that scaring the Indians does not come into the picture.

The extent to which the Indians may be frightened by publication of more complete reports of such operations as the present Japanese is a highly debatable angle.

Indians are subject to panic. One single bomb raid on Calcutta sent 750,000 Indians fleeing to the hills little more than a year ago. That was militarily important, and the censors withheld it from publication for many a day. Yet, the population fled not because of publication of the news but because they had heard the bombs; they didn't wait to read the reports in the weekly Indian-language newspaper.

> American suspicions have been stirred deeply by evidence that the Allied campaign in Burma is being distorted by censorship. In this article, the chief of Associated Press operations in the China-Burma-India theater of war, newly arrived in this country from India, tells what is behind the trouble newspaper correspondents in Burma have been having with censorship.

AN EQUALLY important element in the censorship is the effort to cover up defeats. Both British and American prestige in the Orient has suffered because of repeated setbacks at the hands of the Japanese. This is important to the Americans, but doubly important to the British, who expect to regain the parts of their empire now in the hands of the Japanese and don't want to have to suffer from publication of too much bad news.

That factor is playing a big part in the censorship of dispatches on the Burma campaign. Moreover, in spite of effort to smother it, there is a certain rivalry between the British and Americans, and the censorship endeavors to keep that out of print for the long-time political advantage it might give to one country or the other.

The Chinese also come into the picture. They want credit for what they do because it has a big bearing on what lease-lend material they get from America, and it bears on their own prestige both during and after the war.

At the same time, it is not to Britain's advantage as an empire builder to have too much credit go to the Chinese or Americans for defeating the Japanese.

IN INDIA, as well as elsewhere, there are many critics of the military operations stemming out of India. That the Japanese, with vastly inferior forces and with virtually no air cover, could penetrate India and threaten a vital American-British-Chinese supply line is to some almost unthinkable.

Yet it has happened, and the censorship has set out to make as good a picture of it as possible.

Not all the odd twists of censorship in India are due to the British. For 13 long months correspondents in India were forbidden to write a single word about the American air supply line over the "hump" into China, although writers outside India could, and did, write certain facts about it.

The American argument for withholding such news was that calling attention to the operation by publicity would be flaunting it in the face of the Japanese, and they would be compelled to attack the route to save "face."

British and American correspondents protested that the Japanese did not base their aerial strategy on what they read in the London and New York papers, but the censorship continued. Finally it was partly lifted last January with a flourish—and the Japanese didn't attack the line any more than they had previously.

The fact remains that in spite of the censorship, correspondents have got out a reasonably good picture of the military and political situation in India. The trouble is that censorship has been so bad at times in the past that even when the truth gets out in full, it is often suspected.

COLUMBUS, O., April 25—Ohio's next first lady, whoever she may be, will be a housewife whose chief interests are her home and her family.

One of nine women will succeed Mrs. Harriet Day Bricker as manager of the huge 27-room executive mansion when Governor Bricker retires next January from the governorship he held for three terms.

Six Democrats and four Republicans seek to succeed to the gubernatorial chair. Only Frank J. Dye, Columbus attorney who ran last in a five-man Democratic primary two years ago, is a bachelor. The election of any of the others would furnish Ohio with another first lady of which the state can be proud.

The nine ladies have many things in common, and a composite picture of the next governor's lady can be easily drawn: She will be gracious and charming, interested in war work, the Red Cross and victory gardening—but only after the home wants of her loved one are satisfied.

MRS. IRENE TAYLOR

Of the Republican candidates, Mayor James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati, if elected, would have for his official hostess his daughter, Irene, 32, wife of Cincinnati attorney John C. Taylor.

Mrs. Taylor, mother of two small daughters, Cynthia and Irene, was reared by Stewart as the daughter of a very successful, well-to-do attorney, nevertheless, after her marriage she did her own housework — because she wanted to—until her family and her other duties took up too much of her time.

An experienced and gracious hostess, Stewart's daughter is an excellent bridge player, enjoys tennis, and likes horseback riding, particularly an early morning canter with her father.

The war has given her additional hobbies in the Red Cross, victory gardening, and civilian defense activities. However, her first and foremost pleasures are her children and her home. She is an excellent cook.

MRS. PAUL HERBERT

Mrs. Paul Herbert, wife of the lieutenant governor, is a native of Fairfield county, but spent most of her life in Columbus. Like Herbert, she attended Ohio State university.

The Paul Herberts have two children, Patricia, a co-ed at Miami university at Oxford, and Tommy, a junior at Columbus North High school. Although these two take up much of Mrs. Herbert's time, she still remains active in civic and church groups as well as political and veterans' auxiliary organizations.

Since the war she had taken a leading role in Red Cross activities, particularly the annual membership drive and in the emergency medical unit of civilian defense. She is enthusiastic about outdoor life and loves to go bicycling. Her other main hobby is her garden, most of which has been converted from growing the flowers for which she was locally famous to food production since Pearl Harbor.

MRS. THOMAS J. HERBERT

Mrs. Jeanette J. Herbert, wife of Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert—who calls her Jean—likewise has devoted most of her married life to rearing her family.

The Tom Herberts have three children: Daniel Judson, now in the armed forces; John David, a student at Columbus academy, and a daughter, Metta, studying to become a registered nurse.

Mrs. Herbert prides herself on her cooking, and takes great delight in her acknowledged ability to prepare superbly one of Tom's favorite dishes—scrambled eggs and kippered herring. Like the others, she is active in the Red Cross and civilian defense.

She leaves most of the actual political campaigning to her husband, but enjoys accompanying him on his campaign tours. Invariably her luggage will be packed with blue dresses—her favorite color.

MRS. ALBERT PAYNE

Mrs. Albert Edward Payne, wife of the Springfield candidate, likewise favors her home life for recreation. She enjoys doing her own housework, cooking and baking—particularly does she like to get her husband's breakfast. She plays bridge well and writes surprisingly good poetry.

The Paynes have three children: Douglas, 18, now in the navy; Jerry, 15, and Rea Nell, 11. The entire family takes a personal interest in the vegetable and flower garden on their farm home near Springfield.

Born May 17, 1878 in Wyandot county, he was a son of Thomas and Mary Jane Atkinson Emptage. He was a Spanish War veteran, having served with Co. B, Second Ohio Infantry. Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Nellie Clark Emptage, and nieces and nephews. Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the Marseilles Methodist church by Rev. Edward Jones. Burial will be in Chandler cemetery at Marseilles. Friends may call at the Bringman & Sons funeral home in Upper Sandusky until Thursday noon when the body will be taken to the church.

Firemen Called Before Flames Get Started

A watchful pedestrian reported a fire to city firemen before it started last night. About 10:29 sparks were noticed coming from a chimney at 259 South Prospect street. The sparks fell on the roof of a house at 253 South Prospect street occupied by Mrs. Goldie Davisson but did not ignite the roof. No. 1 truck and quad unit from central station answered the call.

The Best Plan —

It is pretty safe to say that most everyone wants a home that is correctly and comfortably furnished, but not every family can spare the money to refurnish, get everything new that is needed, at once.

The best plan is to consider one room at a time. First, arrange to open an account at Schaffner's. Then, turn in such no-longer-wanted pieces as you may have in that room, as part payment on new things. That means a good saving.

Buy as much at a time as you feel you can afford during the course of a year or so—and keep your account "open". Add on to your purchases as you get all or partly paid up.

Many families in Marion and hereabouts are doing this. Step in some time and talk it over.

Social Affairs

THE Marion Sorosis club closed its 1943-44 club season with a dinner last night at Ringer's' inn. The table was centered with a bouquet of forsythia and which also was used with pussy willows to decorate the rooms. Plans were completed for the club's participation in Fine Arts day. Following a business meeting, Mrs. Harold Arbogast, retiring president, turned the meeting over to the new president, Mrs. Glen Toms. A contest prize was won by Mrs. Russell Wilhelm.

PATRONESS day was observed at a meeting yesterday afternoon of the Searchlight club at the home of Mrs. J. E. Smith of West Church street. Patronesses of the club were guests. Mrs. A. H. Grimes led devotions on the subject, "Courage, following which prayer was offered for men and women in service. Roll call was answered with favorite passages. "The Robe" by Lloyd C. Douglass was reviewed by Mrs. J. W. Baker. Refreshments were served by the executive committee.

Mrs. Max Sechrist was elected president for the coming year when the Junior Circle of the Child Conservation League met last night at the home of Mrs. Robert Keller of South Grand avenue. Elected to serve with Mrs. Sechrist were Mrs. LaMar Faught, vice president, Mrs. O. B. Flickinger, secretary, and Mrs. Gerald Maynard, treasurer. Tentative plans were made for a children's party on June 10 at the home of Mrs. Faught of 203 Kensington place.

One of a series of pre-nuptial parties for Miss Rosella Sheehe was a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Gregory Wilhelm Saturday evening at her home on East Mark street. The bride-elect, who will become the bride of John Moloney on May 2, found her gifts on a table, each gift tied with a streamer coming from a blue and white sprinkling can overhanging the table. Contest awards for the evening were won by Miss Sheehe and Mrs. J. E. Moloney. A luncheon was served at small tables decorated in the bridal colors. Guests were Mrs. Floyd Sheehe, mother of the bride elect, Mrs. J. E. Moloney, mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Charles Moll, Mrs. Clifford Hogan, Miss Rose and Ruth Moloney, Miss Mary Corenflo, Miss Martha Fabian and Miss Evelyn Gassaway.

A birthday dinner was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haskell of 601 North Prospect street for Mrs. Earl Stiffler of Radnor and her sister, Mrs. Haskell, whose birthdays fall on the same date, April 24. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stiffler and Mr. and Mrs. Jay Stiffler of near Radnor; Ruthann Haskell of Marion; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Miley and son, John of near Richwood, and Mrs. Ida Chrysler and John Miley of Prospect.

Weddings

Miss Dorothea Sheets, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Sheets of 854 Bellefontaine avenue, and Cpl. Norman R. Reese, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Reese of Ada, were united in marriage Tuesday April 18 at 7:30 p. m. in the Oakland Evangelical church. The ceremony was read by candlelight by Rev. J. R. Dallas before an altar decorated with palms, white gladiolus, ferns and huckleberry foliage.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ice blue dress with black accessories and an orchid corsage. The matron of honor, Mrs. Dorothy Creasap, twin sister of the bride, wore a beige dress with brown accessories. Her corsage was of talisman roses.

Sgt. Russell Reese served his brother as best man and Clyde Born acted as usher and also lighted the tapers.

Mrs. Sheets chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of navy blue sheer with which she wore a corsage of white carnations.

Preceding the ceremony a half hour organ recital was presented by Mrs. Pauline Dutt. Her numbers included "Venetian Love Song," "Indian Love Call," "Tonight We Love," "Because," "At Dawning," "To an Evening Star," "One Alone" and the traditional Wedding Marches. During the ceremony she played "Liebestraum."

Following the ceremony a reception was given at the Hotel Harding. Hostesses were Mrs. Lorain Wollam and Mrs. Creasap. The couple left Saturday for Columbia, S. C., where Cpl. Reese is stationed at Fort Jackson.

Out of town guests of the wedding were Mrs. Katherine Canterbury of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Wollam of Warren, and Mrs. Lowell Reese of Ada.

Personal Mention

Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Robinson of Marietta spent the week-end with Mr. Robinson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry O. Robinson of 478 Bellefontaine avenue. Mr. Robinson is a delegate from the Fifteenth Congressional district to the Republican national convention.

Atlanta Girl And F. V. Murphy Jr. Exchange Vows

MISS FRANCES ANNE LYNCH, daughter of Mrs. John Keery Lynch of Atlanta, Ga., and the late Mr. Lynch, and Frank V. Murphy Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank V. Murphy of 333 North Prospect street, were united in marriage in the Sacred Heart church in Atlanta, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. Patrick M. Lynch, brother of the bride, performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with Easter lilies and white stephanotis. The music was presented by Vincent Hurley, organist and Mrs. Ernest Trotti, vocalist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother John Keery Lynch Jr., wore white marquisette with long sleeves and a sweet heart neckline. A full skirt extended to form a long train and her fingertip veil was held by a tiara of orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was made up of white orchids, lilies of the valley and bride's roses. She also carried her gift from the bridegroom, a crystal and sterling rosary.

Serving as her maid of honor and only attendant was Miss Patsy Baker of Atlanta, who wore a gown of blue dotted Swiss and a Juliet cap of the same material. She carried a bouquet of red roses and spring flowers.

Dr. Daniel Murphy acted as his brother's best man and the ushers were James A. McGlew and Robert O'Shaughnessy, classmates of the bridegroom at St. Louis Medical school.

Mrs. Murphy was attired in a navy crepe dress with rhinestone trim. She wore a small Milan straw hat and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Lynch selected a royal blue sheer dress for her daughter's wedding, with which she wore a contrasting blue hat. Her corsage was also an orchid. The bride's gift to her attendant was a rhinestone bracelet and the bridegroom presented his best man and ushers with saddle leather billfolds.

Following the ceremony, Mrs. John Keery Lynch entertained at a breakfast at the Atlanta-Biltmore hotel.

The new Mrs. Murphy graduated from Sacred Heart Parochial school in Atlanta and attended Fontbonne college in St. Louis. Mr. Murphy Jr., graduated from St. Mary High school and attended the University of Notre Dame. He is now a student at St. Louis Medical school under the Army Specialized Training Program. He is a member of Phi Beta Pi fraternity. Following a trip to Tennessee, the couple will make their home after May 1 in St. Louis.

Attending the wedding from Marion were Dr. and Mrs. Frank V. Murphy and Miss Mary Rita Murphy. Also present were Dr. and Mrs. Daniel M. Murphy of Cleveland.

Sorority Group's Annual Inspection Luncheon Held

MRS. EVELYN STEWART of Cambridge, national inspector, conducted the annual inspection of the work of Beta Gamma chapter, Lambda Chi Omega sorority, Sunday, at Hotel Harding. The members and guest officer met for luncheon at 1 o'clock and the inspection followed. Decorations for the luncheon included a centerpiece of sweet peas and daisies.

Serving on the ritual team were Mrs. Howard Weber, Mrs. Jack Bentley, Mrs. Clifford Nelson, Mrs. Quayle Giles, Mrs. Mayo Adams and Mrs. Kenneth Frayer and Mrs. Robert Brown presided as pianist.

Arrangements for the meeting were in charge of a committee composed of Mrs. Robert Brown, Mrs. Jack Bentley and Mrs. Mayo Adams.

Claridon, Cardington Couple Wed Sunday

The marriage of Miss Rosella Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Miller of Claridon and Charles Kehrwecker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Kehrwecker of Cardington, was solemnized Sunday at 12:30 o'clock in the parsonage of the Cardington Nazarene church. The single ring ceremony was read by Rev. Charles Barkley. For her wedding the bride chose a powder blue dress with a small matching hat trimmed in veiling. Her accessories were navy blue and her corsage was of sweetheart roses.

Attending the couple were Miss Elizabeth Zolman of Mt. Gilead and Gerald W. Potts of Chesterville. Miss Zolman wore a navy blue dress and accessories and a corsage of roses.

PARTY AT WALDO

Mrs. Gail Shoaf of Waldo entertained Friday afternoon with a party honoring the sixth birthday of her daughter Joyce. The table was centered with a pink and white cake bearing lighted candles. Individual cakes, each with a lighted candle were used as favors. Mrs. Shoaf was assisted in serving by May Eileen and Mary Ellen Knappenberger. Guests were: Sandra Sue Henry, Cynthia Lee Groll, Carol Sue Shuster, Mary Ann Forry, Shirley Pickett, Billie Pickett and Jack Shoaf. Games were played with awards going to Mary Ann Forry and Shirley Pickett.

Bricker To Give "Spot" Medal for Saving Boy

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 25—Gov. Bricker will officiate at a tribute Thursday to a $3 beagle hound that helped save the life of its partly crippled five-year-old master early this month.

Bricker will present a medal and a citation from the American Humane Association and a new collar, a license and a framed testimonial from the Columbus Humane Society to "Spot" at ceremonies in the executive offices.

"Spot" kept a 24-hour vigil over little Paul McCoy after the youngster had fallen in an isolated field near here and was unable to rise. The dog's barking finally led searchers to the unconscious boy.

Mrs. Maggie Jenkins of Cardington Dies

Women's Clubs Plan Fine Arts Day Programs

MUSIC, vocal and instrumental, exhibits, talks and a Pan American Fiesta in the form of a tea will make up the afternoon and evening program for the annual community fine arts day to be sponsored by the Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs, Wednesday, May 3, at Hotel Harding.

This year's program will feature outstanding speakers and musical talent and exhibits are expected to provide one of the day's highlights, in that they will include articles and mementoes from around the world. The committee in charge of exhibits is asking that persons, whether or not they are affiliated with federated clubs, loan articles of interest, souvenirs, jewelry and other items sent or brought from foreign lands, for the exhibit. These articles, the committee states, will be given every care and competent persons will be in charge of them during the hours of the exhibit. Persons having such aritcles to loan to the exhibit are asked to call Mrs. C. G. Smith, chairman of the fine arts day committee. Other exhibits will include old jewelry, fans, shawls, quilts, laces, coverlets and all kinds of needlework.

The evening program is being arranged to provide entertainment of special interest to the men patrons. At this time, Philip Adams, director of the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts, will be the guest speaker. Mr. Adams won popular favor here when he was the principal speaker for a ladies' night party given by the Marion Rotary club last fall.

The various clubs are planning entries in the exhibits and representatives of clubs in the federation will assist throughout the afternoon and evening with the tea. The programs will be presented in the hotel ballroom and tea will be in the presidential suite. Tickets for the afternoon and evening are being sold by the clubwomen.

LONG RUN. Judith Evelyn (above), dramatic actress, recently passed the 1,000-performance mark in her Broadway engagement as star of the psychological melodrama, Angel Street.

BAPTIST SOCIETY OFFICERS CHOSEN

Marion ssociation Election Is Held at Richwood.

Mrs. Elmer Myers of the Grand Prairie Baptist church was re-elected president when the Women's Missionary societies of the Marion Baptist association elected officers for the coming year at a quarterly meeting Thursday in the Baptist church at Richwood. Election of officers and a program highlighted the one-day meeting attended by 115 members and guests. Mrs. Winifred Lowe of Springdale was elected vice president, Mrs. O. C. Young of Richwood, secretary, Mrs. Gerald Shaffer of Nevada, treasurer, and Mrs. Cyril Bryant of Grand Prairie, missions vice president; Mrs. Lora King of West Mansfield, devotional leader; Mrs. Emery Roberts of Prospect, student counselor; Mrs. H. C. Gillespie of Richwood, Christian Friendliness chairman; Mrs. Russell Daubert of Prospect, Christian citizenship; Mrs. Milan Gorby, Trinity church, Marion, children's worker; Mrs. Ethel Wagner of West Mansfield, literature secretary; Mrs. James Sanderson, Fite Memorial, Marion, White Cross chairman.

Mrs. Myers presided for opening of the meeting and devotions were by Mrs. Lora King of West Mansfield. Mrs. Fred Strood of Youngstown, president of the Ohio Baptist Women's Missionary society, addressed the group at the morning session. She discussed the work the women will take up next year and presented the topic, "Thy Peace," which is to be the program theme for the societies during the next three years. The members voted to hold an individual prayer period each day at 9 o'clock. Music for the session included a vocal duet by Mrs. Cyril Bryant and Mrs. Callie Myers of Grand Prairie, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. O. C. Young, and a hymn by the audience. Rev. H. C. Gillespie of Richwood closed the session with prayer. A potluck dinner was served at noon.

Mrs. Strood presided for installation of officers in the afternoon. She presented each officer with a corsage and Mrs. Strood was given a corsage of sweet peas by Mrs. Myers. Organization of two new societies, one at Prospect and one at Fite Memorial Baptist church in Marion, was reported, and attendance banners were awarded to Fite Memorial Baptist society, first, Grand Prairie, second and Trinity Marion, third. Plans were made to attend a meeting at Camp Pittinger June 6-8. It was voted to hold the next meeting in July at LaRue. A song by the audience, devotions by Mrs. Claude Swartz of Richwood and a vocal solo by Mrs. Margaret Woy of Fite Memorial church opened the session. Mrs. F. H. LeMasters of Trinity, conducted a missionary and Bible quiz and the meeting closed with prayer by Rev. George Reed of Springdale.

Marion Navy Club Elects Delegates

Arthur Watt and Harley Haines were elected delegates to the National Navy club convention to be held in Kenosha, Wis., on June 2, 3 and 4, at the regular meeting of the Marion Navy club Monday night. Mr. Watt is a past national officer. Mrs. Evelyn Reynolds, who served as a Navy yeomanette in World War I and is Snipswriter of the local club, commandant of the local Auxiliary and senior executive officer of the National Auxiliary, will also attend.

Commandant Norval V. Foreman announced a committee composed of Arthur Watt, William Brown, Leonard Pace, Verne Griffith and Harley Haines will have charge of the anual Navy memorial services at Forest Glen park on Sunday, May 28, at 2 p. m.

Two new members were accepted and a social hour followed the meeting.

Bomb Explosion Leaves WACS Homeless in Italy

By The Associated Press

NAPLES, April 25—There were nine homeless WACs in Naples today, a little shaken after a bombing destroyed the apartment which served as their billet, but in good spirits.

"I don't know where you're going to sleep tonight but don't worry, we'll find a place for you," said their commanding officer, Capt. Jane A. Stretch of Philadelphia.

The bomb landed in the midst of buildings housing a WAC unit attached to the airforce service command and sliced off the end of one of the structures but none of the WACs was injured.

Sgt. Beatrice White of Middletown, Conn., was working in a building a half mile or so away when she heard a bomb explode—the first she had ever heard.

"I knew it had hit somewhere and when I came home a half hour later I found it was our own apartment," she said. "I lost all my clothes except those I had on and all my snapshots."

NAZI OIL SOURCES IN PERIL

— ...proach of D-Day finds Hitler ... desperately trying to rush ... ships from Nazi occupied ... mated European areas ... U. S. bombers from Italy ... ases crack at transportation centers and supply stations; ... forces smash closer to ... Romanian fields to ... and the Polish and Czechoslovakian fields to the ... Using the most recent ... available information, this map illustrates the European sources of oil for the German war machine. A mere glance will indicate why the Romanian situation brings gooseflesh to the Nazis whose air strength has been greatly crippled by the continuous blasts of allied bombers. The demands of a "second front" defensive will be terrific and, whatever may be the axis oil reserves, continuous lopping off of fresh supplies are likely to be soon felt

Finland Holds Out in Hope Nazis Will Force Stalemate

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Finland's action in rejecting Moscow's peace terms on the eve of the great invasion and, according to informed sources in Stockholm, gambling that Hitler will achieve a stalemate in the war, won't of course weaken our confidence in allied success but it's a sharp reminder that Germany still possesses great strength and that a terrible conflict is before us.

Berlin newspapers are saying that "the greatest battle in the history of the world will take place along the Atlantic," and certainly that may prove to be true. Anyway, the Nazis are standing at alert and we should be foolish not to accept their statement that they "are ready for a hard fight."

Break With U. S. Likely

Finland's ill - advised move, made in the face of strong possibilities that the United States would sever diplomatic relations, probably represents a decision of desperation. Still, the Stockholm sources say it was based on the conviction that the reich has sufficient strength so that it may stand off the allies even though it cannot win a clean-cut victory. This belief must be fairly strong, since the Finnish government is making its terrific gamble despite the recent assurances of its commander in chief, Baron Mannerheim, that the little country hasn't the strength to stand up against an all-out military offensive by Russia.

The Finnish decision admittedly was a difficult one to make, especially in view of the country's friendship with America, and there is fair reason to doubt whether it represents the majority of Finns. Perhaps there still is a chance that Helsinki may find its reason and make terms with Moscow.

Meanwhile one has the uncomfortable feeling that the Finnish government wants to get a look at the start of the invasion of western Europe.

Plane Plants Underground

Berlin frankly admits that the allied bombing has weakened Germany's ability to counter the invasion, but boasts that the allies won't be able to attain their objective of knocking out the Nazi air force. DNB, the official news bureau, points out that many of the reich's airplane factories are underground — something which allied observers long have accepted as a fact.

DNB also says the luftwaffe is holding a reserve for action when the invasion starts, and there's no reason to doubt that. As this column has pointed out previously, anxiety to preserve a reserve for the big day undoubtedly accounts in part for the comparatively light resistance being offered by Nazi fighter planes to the bombings.

Latest figures of German army strength, as available in Madrid today, give the Germans a possible total of 319 divisions all told. It's certain that many of these divisions aren't up to strength, and we can only guess that they may represent some 3,500,000 to 3,750,000 men. Ninety-six divisions—perhaps something over a million troops—are available to meet the invasion in western Europe.

That's a lot of men, but too few to handle the onslaught which Hitler will have to meet simultaneously on the eastern and western fronts. The Russians are said to be massing troops for offensives to synchronize with the invasion in the west.

Yet it ... be pointed out that observers ... most of the fighting in the ... ...ons were unanimous in their ...gment that never before had ... attacked on this particular ... with such frightful and bloody fighting taken place between the Japanese and the Americans.

The Japanese contention that Americans will not stand their ground to the bitter end was refuted by the thousands of enemy dead piled up at the gun ports of our pillboxes. General Beightler described these battle-tested men as superb. They were ordered to hold their positions to the last man. And it was only by killing or wounding the occupants of any pillbox that the enemy seized it. Even then, after penetrations had been made, the men of the adjacent boxes stuck grimly to their places and at no time allowed the enemy to exploit these limited penetrations. Before the attack, which General Beightler knew was coming, he directed that they be relieved from the front line and fresh troops take their places. They appealed this order and simply asked to be allowed to stay and finish the job. They finished it with 310 Japs dead before their pillboxes.

Indifferent To Their Fate

The Japanese who attacked the 37th division at Torokin were not only fanatical but desperate, determined and utterly indifferent to their fate, whether, it be by ultimate starvation or by American bullets. They were, when they launched their attack well-equipped and well fed. To them the only reasonable and honorable course was their suicidal attack against us, in the hope of an unlikely chance of catching us off-balance and actually succeed in destroying us.

Our forces analyzed every major Japanese move correctly. There was no surprise assaults against our forces. Main reason was the aggresive patrolling of the reconnaissance troop. General Beightler has stated that his one-time farmers, factory workers, miners and office men from America, have out-scouted, out-maneuvered, out-fought, and above all, out-live the best the Japanese have been able to throw against them—and on ground of the Jap's choosing. Nothing is more fantastically remote from everything these men knew in their former life than jungle warfare. Yet they have decisively beaten the Jap wherever they have met him. Results are what count . . . and results are produced in the Pacific.

The battle of the Solomons is over. Scores of thousands of Japan's finest troops have been sacrificed in these remote islands, overriden by the superior might of the United States. The 37th division is not unaware of the honor and significance of its role in this great battle, and of its almost single handed destruction of the last significant Japanese force in the area.

The horror of Nanking has been avenged.

Salient facts of the situation were these:

Germans, Finns and Norwegians were forbidden to travel to Denmark from Sweden by ferry.

Swedes were not directly forbidden but state railways refused to sell tickets to Denmark.

Telephone service between Sweden and Denmark has been shut down completely since last night except for official calls which still are coming through from Copenhagen.

Similar isolation developed August 29, 1943, when the Germans took over control of all Denmark.

Humboldt bay forces, in addition to occupying Hollandia village, took the village of Pim four miles to the south, within eight miles of the Tami airfield in the Lake Sentani area. The main Hollandia field is 17 miles west, the Cyclops field 11 miles west and slightly north.

Wewak Bombed

Whether others of the 60,000 Nipponese soldiers between Hollandia and bypassed Wewak and Madang would figure in the fighting remained to be seen but headquarters reported today a supporting 333-ton bombing of the Wewak-Hansa bay area by allied bomber and attack planes. Wewak is a Japanese air base 250 miles southeast of Hollandia.

To the northwest of Hollandia, Japanese air bases at Geelvink bay, from which planes could be sent against the invaders, apparently have been reinforced. Headquarters said today that Liberators had to fight off 30 interceptors, shooting down from 14 to 17, while dropping 41 tons of explosives on airdromes there. The bombers had met no enemy air opposition in recent raids on that sector.

nominee from among many candidates cannot justify a first ballot choice."

While Moore would not specify where he thought 257 Bricker delegates could be assembled, he said that in his calculations he had eliminated the New England states, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, California and Minnesota from the list of those which could be expected to produce any appreciable number of supporters for the Ohio governor.

While he did not say so, it was obvious Moore was counting heavily on such states as California, with Gov. Earl Warren, and Pennsylvania, with Gov. Edward Martin, casting "favorite son" votes on the first ballot.

The strategy of the Bricker camp, assured of Ohio's 50 votes, appeared to be to work quietly for delegates in the smaller states in the hope that the apparent Dewey boom now underway would not carry the New York governor to a nomination on the first test and that some "break" might came their way on subsequent votes.

Bricker, here with his wife and a retinue of campaign followers, arranged to meet the press for an "on the record" conference preliminary to a speech at 10:30 o'clock tonight which will be broadcast nationally (CBS).

After his New York appearance, the Ohio governor will turn westward again for a tour which will carry him into Wisconsin for a speech at Milwaukee May 12, and on to Iowa, Minnesota and Nebraska.

U. S. Planes Sink German Submarine in Two Minutes

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 25—Destruction of a German U-boat in two minutes of concentrated action by American carrier-based planes was reported today by the Navy.

The sub's fate was sighted by Lt. (J. G.) Wallace A. Lafleur, 22, Lafayette, La., who was flying on patrol from a "baby flat-top" far out in the Atlantic.

He made two bombing runs on the enemy despite anti-aircraft fire, but because of evasive action, failed to score a hit.

He began circling above the U-boat, remaining there despite anti-aircraft fire for 25 minutes, keeping in touch with the raider until other planes could arrive from the carrier 70 miles away.

"I'm going to sit here all night if they don't come," he told the carrier.

But they did come—two fighter planes and two torpedo bombers.

One bomb scored a perfect hit; another struck close by; the stern of the submarine rose high out of the water—she sank only two minutes after the attack began.

Britain Halts All Traveling

Severe Restrictions Clamped Down as Invasion Date Draws Near.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, April 25—Britain halted all but the most urgent travel overseas in another invasion-secrecy step today, while the Germans predicted the invasion hour was near and declared their most seasoned troops stood ready to meet the assault.

The travel ban, "except for business on urgent national important which cannot be postponed," will run indefinitely and was taken "for military reasons," a home office announcement said. It followed orders restricting movements of diplomats, tightening control over coastal areas, suspending travel to Eire and other recent steps to prevent leakage of information.

Thursday Deadline

Persons now holding exit permits can use them to leave Britain until midnight Thursday. Thereafter only "urgent" permits will be issued. No permit to leave the country will be valid unless issued on or after April 19.

Berlin broadcasts told the German people to expect the invasion at any moment, and boasted of defense and counter measures.

Experienced German troops from the Russian front now are guarding the Atlantic coast, one German commentator declared, and they "are ready for a hard fight."

DNB said the allied air blows had weakened "potential German countering strength" but that the luftwaffe "with many of its plane production factories underground, will not be knocked out," and is "planning a second front of its own—adding reserves to use only when the curtain raises."

Prepare for Parachutists

Another broadcast said preparations had been made to counter allied parachute landings, and that the Germans would "meet surprise with surprise."

Here in England, Lt. Gen. H. D. Crerar, Canadian commander-in-chief, said the Canadian army was finished with its pre-invasion training and eager to settle the debt of Dieppe.

German newspapers reaching neutral Madrid warned "the Anglo-American invasion probably will have a different result than at Dieppe," and "the greatest battle in the history of the world will take place along the Atlantic."

Available information in Madrid indicated this might be the distribution of German forces: six divisions in Norway, 12 in Finland, 12 in the Balkans, 175 in Russia, 25 in Italy, five along the Mediterranean coast and 30 posted on the Atlantic wall with a mobile reserve of 60 divisions at strategic points in France, Germany, and central Europe.

ASHLEY DRIVER SERIOUSLY HURT IN TRAFFIC CRASH

Jesse Bennett Taken to Columbus Hospital.

Special to The Star

ASHLEY, April 25—Jesse Bennett of Ashley suffered a fractured jaw and other injuries when his automobile struck another car south of Powell Monday night. It was learned that the driver of the other car, in front of the Bennett auto, swerved suddenly into a driveway. The state Highway Patrol investigated the accident. Bennett was taken to University hospital, Columbus, for treatment of his injuries, which included a fractured lower jaw and a deep gash under his chin and two front teeth knocked out. He was on his way to Columbus to take employment which had been offered him there. The driver of the other car was not hurt. His name was not reported. Bennett's parents, are Mr. and Mrs. Ike Bennett, managers of the Greyhound bus station here.

STEEL MEN OPPOSE CIO WAGE BOOST

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 25—The nation's iron and steel producers big and small, today declared they are unable to absorb any wage increases. They pronounced demands by the CIO United Steel Workers unwarranted.

Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the U. S. Steel Corporation, told a war labor board (WLB) panel that if the union's demands are granted "the public will have to foot the bill." He placed the cost of all the demands at a half-billion dollars and for 31 principal companies.

Lauson Stone, president of one of the industry's smaller units, Follansbee Steel Corp., declared, "I do not believe the granting of the union's demands is necessary to the effective prosecution of the war. I do believe they are contrary to the national economic stabilization program and that they constitute a political crusade on the part of the union. I submit that small business in this country should not be subjected to any such crusade."

The steel makers thus opened their reply to the union's demands for an increase of 17 cents an hour, a guaranteed wage, dismissal pay, a fund for returning servicemen and about 10 other items.

A final decision by the board may not be reached until late summer or fall.

Fairless, in his prepared remarks, said "the truth of the matter is steel workers are today receiving the highest wages they have ever received, and this is so whether considered on an hourly, daily or weekly basis."

Challenging a union assertion that the wage demands can be met without any increase in steel prices, Fairless said 31 of the principal steel companies last year took in $6,294,000,000 and that "only $171,000,000, or the small fraction of about 2½ per cent of that large sum, remained as net income."

Cuyahoga Democrats Won't Vote Indorsement

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, April 25—The Cuyahoga county Democratic organization will not support any candidate for the party's gubernatorial nomination, including Cleveland's Mayor Frank J. Lausche, Chairman Ray T. Miller reports.

In a two-hour meeting last night ward leaders and members of the county Democratic scanning committee adopted a resolution that "no indorsements of any candidate for office be made by the Democratic organization of Cuyahoga county."

Previously Mayor Lausche had been considered in political circles to be the logical choice for the county's approval.

Wet Grounds Serious Handicap To Baseball Practice Sessions

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

Those two athletically-unpopular gents, Generals Rain and Mud, have taken command at Lincoln park, causing a serious delay in the pre-season practice program of the Marion Ohio State league baseballers.

Steady downpours last week-end and yesterday left the Lincoln field a veritable sea of mud. It was doubtful whether a practice could be held today, even if Old Sol did make an appearance.

Grover Hartley, Marion manager, said yesterday that the Lincoln infield has been made so muddy by rain that it would take another day or two of sunshine before the diamond would be dry enough for practice.

Not since last Friday has the Marion team been able to hold a full-scale workout. Yesterday, in order to keep in good physical trim, the 11 team candidates now in the city, worked out in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, running, performing calisthenics, and the like. Some players, who are rooming at residences near Lincoln park, have been playing catch and batting grounders on North Main street after they discovered that no ball diamond in town was suitable for play.

Only Team Without Drill

All this interference from the weather man is a decided detriment to the local club, which appears to be the only team in the Ohio State loop that has not as yet staged thorough practices. Manager Hartley hasn't had a chance to look over some of the newly-arrived club prospects. Latest candidate to arrive here is Bob Nicholson of Portsmouth, who came in yesterday. He is a young outfielder. Several other youths who checked in last Friday and Saturday are unknown quantities as far as Hartley is concerned. After these boys and the 15 optioned players scheduled to arrive from the east sometime this week have been carefully watched in action by Hartley, it will be necessary to begin the old "weeding out process," which always takes some time. O. S. L. player limit is 15 to a team, which means that over half of the Marion tryouts will have to be turned away for the first part of the season, at least.

Judge W. Dexter Hazen, Marion team president, Hugo Malo, vice president, and Larry Axe, member of the board of directors, were in Tiffin yesterday with a representative of a Columbus firm to make a final check on the lighting equipment purchased by the local club from Charles LeCrone, president of the defunct Tiffin organization. The Columbus representative, whose company has been contracted to transport the the lights from Tiffin to Marion and to install them, placed an estimate on the additional lighting equipment needed to be obtained by Marion officials. The light sprobably will be moved to Marion the latter part of this week and it is still uncertain whether they will be installed by the time of the season opener with Lima at Lincoln park next Tuesday.

Other O. S. L. news: Pitching seems to be Manager Clay Bryant's biggest bugaboo in the camp of the Newark O. S. L. club. Last Friday afternoon, the Newark regulars and the "yannigans," composed of a group of substitutes, deadlocked in an intra-squad game, 5 to 5 and the pitchers were hit soundly and frequently. Moundsman Kenny Braden of the regulars went fine for the first four innings but his arm folded in the late stages and in one stretch he walked five batters in succession. . . . Manager Bryant umpired most of the game but in the late innings went to left field for the regulars and in his only time at the plate singled hard to left field. Bill Gorsuch, who was a standout on the 1943-44 Newark High school basketball team, is making a great bid for the second string catcher's berth on the team. Gorsuch hasn't had much experience but he is said to have plenty of natural ability. He withdrew from school after the cage season in order to earn a living for his wife and baby. He is 20 years old.

Association Foils Rain, No Games Scheduled

By The Associated Press

In the man-bites-dog vein, American Association baseball clubs, come hail or high water, will turn the tables and foil the weatherman today.

Since the league openers last Wednesday, 18 of 29 scheduled games have been postponed because of rain or wet grounds. But today a tidal wave wouldn't interrupt the circuit's program. No games are scheduled.

St. Paul and Kansas City have been principal victims of dampness, each having only one game under its belt. The Saints dropped a 5-2 decision to the undefeated Brewers at Milwaukee opening day and haven't played since. The Blues' only action was at home last Thursday when they absorbed a 15-2 trimming by Minneapolis.

Three of Sunday's four carded double headers were postponed, and yesterday all games were rained out, including Toledo's twin bill at Louisville.

While sitting it out Monday Manager Charley Grimm of the Brewers announced Vern Godfredson and Bob Anderson, pitchers, have been optioned to Knoxville of the Southern Association.

Harding Thinclads Holding Practice Sessions at Stadium

Harding High school's revived track team has held several practices on the quarter-mile stadium track but rehearsals have been confined mainly to preliminary physical conditioning and ithas not yet been determined whether the squad will be ready for interscholastic meets this spring.

A squad of 32 boys, including Harding seniors, juniors and sophomores, and freshmen from the three city junior highs, have been getting in shape at the stadium for the past week. None of the thinclads have thus far been tried in special track and field events but Coach Joe Petrich believes he will form two outfits for an intra-squad meet by the end of the week.

A meet or two with other schools in this district may be scheduled this spring, Coach Petrich said, depending upon the improvement shown by his charges. None of the boys, however, will be entered in any of the special schoolboy meets in this section like the Ohio Wesleyan Relays this Saturday because of the late start in practices.

A majority of the boys on the squad are football and basketball players, who desire to have some sports activity to keep them in trim during the spring off-season. However, some of the squad members are not gridders or cagers, instead being interested in track as an important competitive sport, not a conditioner.

GIANT'S SPECULATE ON OTT'S SUCCESSOR

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 25—Speculation over Mel Ott's successor as manager of the New York Giants centered on the inner circle of Horace Stoneham's organization today as the popular 35-year-old pilot rejoined his unbeaten club.

Ott passed his physical yesterday at Camden, N. J., where he had reported as a member of the Lakewood, N. J., contingent, but his call to army duty will come from his own draft board in Louisiana any time after May 15, but possibly not until July 24.

Clarence "Bubber" Jonnard, one of Ott's coaches and formerly a manager and scout in the Giants' farm system, headed a list of possible successors that included Manager Gabby Hartnett of the Jersey City farm, Coach Dolf Luque, infielder Billy Jurges and Farm Supervisor Carl Hubbell.

Manager Joe McCarty of the Yankees, recovering from an attack of influenza, heard that Spud Chandler had hopped a train to St. Petersburg, Fla., after receiving an induction call for Friday.

BLUE SOX BEAT HORNETS

The Browne Blue Sox overwhelmed the Hime Hornets, 17 to 4, in a game of the Marion Amateur baseball league at Harding stadium last night. Winning battery was Bob Vinden on the mound and Dick Drollinger behind the plate. For the Hornets, Chuck Elliott pitched and George Roest caught. The fourth game of the loop season was scheduled for the stadium this afternoon.

Giants Lead Loop—in Spirit

By CHIP ROYAL
AP Features Sports Editor

NEW YORK—If enthusiasm could win pennants, the New York Giants would be a cinch. They're bubbling over with the stuff.

There are several reasons for this will to win—Mell Ott's inspiring and confident leadership, the general improvement of the team, and the spring showing of George Hausmann, Bruce Sloan and Bill Voiselle.

Visitors to the Lakewood training camp also heard a lot about Buddy Kerr, the new shortstop, Joe Stephenson, second-string catcher, and Phil Weintraub, the man who came back to first base.

Comparing the 1944 edition of the Giants with the outfit which finished last in the National league's 1943 race, it is easy to see where the Ottmen might be the surprise of the circuit.

The catching staff is stronger with Stephenson and Gus Mancuso helping the possible leading hitter of the loop, Ernie Lombardi.

Cliff Melton looms as the kingpin of a fair pitching staff. Voiselle has improved more than 100 per cent and his fast ball should cause the opposition plenty of trouble. If Ace Adams, Rube Fischer and Ewald Pyle can do as well, they will relieve Mel's worst headache.

Weintraub is making his third trip with the Giants, but he looks a lot better than the Phil of old. If he can come anywhere near his Toledo .334 batting average and his 96 RBI, he'll make a big difference over the first sackers Ott used last season.

Hausmann is a sensation around second. Hal Luby, on the basis of his work with Oakland in the Pacific Coast league, was slated for the job. But Hausmann reported early, took over the post, and they haven't been able to oust him.

Kerr was born near the Polo Grounds and the way he's taken over where Dick Bartell left off, he'll finish his years in the old neighborhood.

Luby, Nap Reyes and Billy Jurges are fighting for the hot corner. They'll all do okay there.

Johnny Rucker, Joe Medwick and Master Melvin are still in the outfield but they'll have to move and hit to keep Sloan and Charley Mead on the bench. Sloan, particularly, is a powerhouse slugger, and he looks good enough to keep the manager out of right field most of the season.

Any guy who can supplant Ott at the plate must be good.

BOBO PROCLAIMS CONNIE'S ATHLETICS IN PENNANT RACE

Newsom Says "We Can Win" and Adds Hastily, "I'm Not Crazy."

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, April 24—The eloquent Mr. Bobo Newson proclaimed today that he and the Philadelphia Athletics can win the pennant this year just by believing they can win, and, having divulged the opinion, he hastened to say he wasn't crazy.

The A's, who have a habit of finishing last rather than first, blacked out the Boston Red Sox 4-0 when Bobo pitched his first game in a Connie Mack uniform, and the victory apparently skyrocketed Newson's hopes.

"You know what, Bo?" said Bobo, who calls everyone "Bo" including himself. "This club can win the pennant this year. Think I'm crazy? Never in baseball has there been a chance like this for a club to win just by believin' they can win and by hustlin' for each other."

The Mackmen, Newson solliloquized before they entrained for today's New York game with the Yankees, are in practically the same position as the pennant-winning Detroit Tigers of 1940.

"You know what helps most in baseball?" he asked. "Believin' in yourself. Believin' you can win. Look what we did in '40. We didn't have a great ball club. We were just a gang of guys who believed we could win."

Connie Mack, who is known to think that it takes more than just believin' to win, didn't say much on the subject, but did comment "we have a good ball club this year—much better than last, livelier, but not as lively as some we've had.

The 1944 ball, he said, hasn't had a chance to show itself off to the fans because the weather has been wet.

"In weather like this," he said, "the ball is deader than ever. I think the ball we have will have plenty of hop to it in dry, warm weather. Then we'll get some good hitting."

WRITES 1,400th SHORT STORY

By The United Press

SEATTLE—Frank Richardson Pierce, dean of Seattle short story writers, rounded out his 25th year as a professional story teller by writing his 1,400th story. Pierce got his start writing stories for a motorcycle enthusiasts' magazine. He sold his first fiction story for $40 and decided to drop out of law school because he felt "I could make more money in fiction."

64 Ohio Stables in Races Here

A record-breaking total of 61 Ohio stables will be represented in the 12 stake events highlighting Marion's 15-day Little Grand Circuit harness racing meet, June 8-21, Frank M. Foster, secretary of the Marion Trotting Association, announced today.

In addition, Foster said, approximately 20 other Ohio stables are expected to open the 1944 trotting season at Marion by participating in over-night affairs sharing the spotlight with the stake program.

Among the 334 horses named in the stake schedule are prize trotters and pacers from 40 of the nation's 48 states.

Following are the Ohio owners whose stock will race at Marion: Marvin Thornton and W. C. Kienan, Akron; Robert F. McCroskey, Amsterdam; Peter Lughill, Archbold; C. A. Carpenter, Berea; Walter J. A pre-school clinic will be held on May 8.

Baseball Moguls Cheer Up as Early Crowds Turn Out Wel

By The Associated Press

Baseball moguls wade out to the ball parks today with some spare change jingling in their side pockets because 256,989 customers gave the national game a vote of confidence in the first week of the new season.

It's still too early to draw any line on what to expect when the hot weather and night games come along, but there's enough business in the house to top the 1943 opening week turnout by 35,000 paid.

The fans have not broken down any gates to get into the parks and the attendance is only slightly better than an average peacetime haul for an opening day, but the future outlook is promising.

Consider that rain washed away the lucrative Sunday dates in the Yankee stadium, Philadelphia, Brooklyn and Pittsburgh. Conservative estimates charge the dreary Sabbath weather with the loss of 60,000 admissions.

Although figures are a little out of line because they include the opening day crowds, the attendance has been over 8,500 a game. Anything resembling this average throughout the season would surpass last year's total for both leagues of 7,714,638.

Cincinnati's opening day crowd of 30,154 is responsible for boosting the National league total to 152,620 as compared to 127,938 for the first seven days in 1943. The American figures for 1944 are 134,090 as contrasted to 123,051 a year ago.

While the statisticians were at work on opening week figures yesterday, the athletes enjoyed a day of rest as the only game scheduled, Cincinnati at Pittsburgh in the national, was called off.

With a shift of scenery the u-beaten New York Giants and S Louis Cardinals go back to t today. Mel Ott's men at Philade phia and the Cardinals in Cinc nati. Brooklyn at Boston and C cago at Pittsburgh complete t National calendar.

Those St. Louis Browns ke their win streak intact for at lea another day as they are scheduled, but Philadelphia vades New York, Boston goes Washington and Detroit Chicago for the first time in three-game American league chart.

No Work for Pitchers Worries Bill McKechnie

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, April 25—Bill McKechnie, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, expressed concern today over the condition of his work-hungry pitching staff.

The Deacon has as good a pitching staff as any in the league—this he has admitted himself. But all rest and no work will dull the sharpest mound performer and that is what has happened to the Reds.

Yesterday they loafed for the third straight day in Pittsburgh where games with the Pirates were cancelled because of wet weather. This means only four pitchers have worked thus far. Of course the Red's pitching has been good and because of that, every starter this season has finished.

Today the Reds open a three-game series with the undefeated St. Louis Cardinals who have won five straight. Elmer Riddle will pitch for Cincinnati, opposed by Mort Cooper.

Battle Royal Booked for Wrestling Show

Thursday's wrestling show at the armory will be a six battle royal. Those on the bill are Rufus Jones, Black Panther, Martino Angelo, Angelo Martinelli, Joe Wolfe and Red Ryan of the Pacific Coast.

The battle will start out with all six men in the ring. The first two to lose are through for the evening, the next two will return for the 45 minute semi and the last two left in the battle royal return for the two-hour main event.

BLIMP SURVIVOR TELLS OF RESCUE

By The Associated Press

HOUMA, La., April 25—A sailor burned young ensign told yesterday how he fought for his life after a Navy blimp dived into the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday.

Only known survivor of the blimp's crew of 10, William Thewes, 21, of Lakewood, O., said the craft was sucked skyward in an updraft after running into a thunderstorm, and that after 40 minutes the blimp slanted at "terrific speed" into the water.

His story:

"The sea was rough. The wind was blowing. It was raining hard and most of us had swallowed a lot of salt water when we hit the gulf. We tried to stay together the best we could.

"One man disappeared shortly after we hit. But the rest of us clustered around an empty gasoline tank. The tank had been ripped loose from the blimp.

"We kidded each other for a while—about the long leaves we'd get for being 'survivors.' We were all there except the one man.

"After several hours I saw most of the others drift away. A crewman and I took the best bearings we could and started paddling northward in our Mae West life jackets. My watch was still working, and it seemed funny.

"At about 7:25 Wednesday evening I saw a blimp. The crewman and I knew they were looking for us. They seemed about 10 miles away. I lost sight of my buddy that night.

"Next morning about 7 o'clock I saw a ship coming. It passed about 100 yards away. A few minutes later it came back. They saw me from a distance of some 200 feet. They scooped me out of the water and gave me dry clothes. And that was that."

POLICE BIDDING FOR BACK PAY

Ask Council To Grant $6,725 Taken from Pay in 1936 and 1937.

Consideration of payment of unpaid wages in 1936-37 when patrolmen were asked to accept less than full salary payment due to the city's lack of funds at that time, was presented to the city council Monday night by Attorney Carter M. Patton, representing the patrolmen now on the force.

Mr. Patton presented the matter during the caucus preceding the regular session. The total amount due the 11 patrolmen is $6,725.01, according to the figures presented to the councilmen. Mr. Patton pointed out that patrolmen and city officials, who have now gone into other employment, but who accepted a cut in salary at that time, had been paid following court actions and stated that patrolmen who remained in the employment of the city felt they were entitled to the same consideration. The city is in a position to finance payment of the wages at this time, the patrolmen believe. The request was taken under advisement by the councilmen.

Also coming before council at the caucus was a number of complaints regarding dogs running loose in the city. The complainants pointed out that gardens are now being planted and that considerable damage has already been done by the animals being allowed to run loose. This matter also will be gone into by council, it was indicated.

Mrs. J. H. Norris, who appeared before council seeking the extension of the Miami street sewer to property on Bellefontaine avenue was advised that council could take no action in the matter.

At the council meeting an ordinance was adopted incorporating an agreement on the part of the water company specifying that in the event of acquisition of the property by the city before the expiration of the five-year rate ordinance, the company would not place a value on the rate contract with the city as part of its selling price.

A petition for a water main on Fahey street, signed by 19 of the 25 residents, presented by Councilman Charles Tate, was referred to the street and alley committee.

BOY SCOUTS OF FIVE TROOPS GET AWARDS

Court of Honor Session Held at Epworth Church

Boy Scouts of five Marion troops held a court of honor at Epworth Methodist church Monday night. Opening ceremonies were led by Scout Alan Meredith of Troop 3 sponsored by Epworth Methodist church. A. H. Exten acted as chairman of the court of honor and Joseph L. Schlosser, assistant field executive of the Harding Area council, acted as scribe.

Dan Smith of Troop 5, sponsored by the American Legion, was made a Life Scout. Alan Meredith of Troop 3 was advanced to Star Scout. Advanced to first class were Fred Lacey and William Flannigan of Troop 6. Second class badges went to James Williams, Lloyd Williams, Robert Imbody, Ashby Hoover, Birch Willey and Tom Torrance of Troop 6; Merle Roth of Troop 7 sponsored by First Evangelical and Reformed church, Roy Buckingham, William Buckingham, Gene Little, Donald Clinger, Robert Robbins, Richard Upton, Jack Greer, Richard Malarkey and Richard McClain of Troop 46, Francis Russell and Charles Severns of Troop 3.

Merit badges were presented to the following from Troop 6: John Stuckey, woodworking, Frederick Lacey, woodworking and swimming; Richard Corwin, handicraft, woodworking and metal work; Charles Wright, reading and woodworking. Boys from Troop 5 receiving merit badges were Robert Mason, coin collecting, Dan Smith, physical development; Jim Wanner, woodworking and music; Robert Saxton of Troop 7 received his public health badge. Merit badges were awarded to two Scouts from Troop 3. Alan Meredith for machinery, reading, mechanical drawing, metal work and wood turning, and Duane Brown for bugling and reading.

Second class badges were presented to J. D. Torrance of troop committee for Troop 6 sponsored by First Presbyterian church, first class by Rev. D. N. Kelly of the committee for Troop 46 sponsored by Wesley Methodist church. Neighborhood Commissioner Donald Sloan presented merit badges. Star badge was presented by John Lacey. Scout Cubbing chairman R. R. Peters of Bucyrus Harding Area council president gave life award. Den Chief warrants were presented by John Lacey. James Riley, a Tenderfoot candidate of Troop 3, was inducted into the troop.

St. Mary Pupils' 2nd Paper Drive Yields 25 Tons

Over the past two week-ends, despite the rainy weather, pupils of St. Mary school collected a total of 50,411 pounds of paper to further help relieve the national paper shortage. This present drive was directed by Sister Jeanne d'Arc, principal of St. Mary school and Father Francis Lay, assistant pastor.

All children of the various grades participated in a contest to see which class would bring in the most paper. The paper was brought to the school-yard on the two week-ends and loaded on a truck placed there by Malo Bros. In the grade school it was a close battle for a time between the sixth and the eighth grades, but when the winners were announced on Saturday night at 8 o'clock when the contest closed, the sixth grade emerged as the new victors with a total of 258 pounds per pupil. Grade eight came in second with 199 pounds to their credit; grade nine placed third in the school rating with 175 pounds to win the high school contest.

Dick Schuler of the eighth grade earned for himself the honor of highest contributor with 1,250 pounds. He wears the coveted green and gold tag given for 1,250 pounds, the yellow-green and lavender for 1,000 pounds, the red for 750, a startling white tag to show 500, a blue one for 250 and a yellow for 100. Thomas Bush of grade six made second place by collecting 1,115 pounds. Again Richard Gunder and Richard Heckman came in among the leaders with 1,000 and 812 pounds for grade four. Nick Maniaci credited grade six with 875 pounds and another classmate, Eugene Van Keuren totaling 794 pounds. Among the others who did outstanding work in this drive are Fred Sampson, 750 pounds, David Hut, 615; Bob Pruzzo, 601; Patricia Simmons, 553; Joe Maniaci, and Robert Stuber, each 557; James Kilbury, 551; Eugene Van Oss, 536; Jane Baldauf, 521, James Zink, and Gene Norris, each 500.

It was no wonder that grade six pulled into the lead. The three mentioned above represented that class, and these made mighty jumps in the average of the winning group by bringing in 500 pounds. Jack Wensinger, James Cusick, Gordon Talclet, Pat Van Oss, Sally Wensinger and Joan Hut.

Added to the 109,455 pounds of paper gathered by St. Mary pupils earlier in the school year, this makes a total of some 80 tons of paper turned in by the children of the parochial school which has an enrollment of 440 children.

Conference Held By Calvary Congregation

A delegate and alternate to the annual conference of Evangelical churches of Ohio were elected at the third quarterly conference of Calvary Evangelical church here Monday night. Reports of various officials were heard and it was reported that the church debt was being successfully reduced with the goal set to lower the amount to below $1,000 by May 7. Rev. E. E. Nietz of Columbus, district superintendent, in charge of the session, conducted a prayer period and gave a devotional talk preceding business. Harvey Zuckman was elected delegate and Ivan Howard was elected alternate of the congregation to the annual conference which will be held at Lorain Aug. 16-20.

WARD CO. PASSES STRIKE DEADLINE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 25—Possibly hinting at presidential action, the White House announced today that the deadline set for Montgomery Ward and company to comply with an order ending the mail order firm's strike had passed with "no acknowledgement" from the company's president.

Tom Blake, White House press attache, said President Roosevelt would be advised of the lack of response, but to a question when some action might be expected Blake said he did not know.

Promptly at 1 o'clock Blake called newsmen to his office and recalled that Mr. Roosevelt in his wire to the company and to the union had a deadline of noon today, Chicago time, (1 p. m., evt) for compliance with his request.

Mr. Roosevelt is vacationing somewhere in the south.

Workers returned to their jobs on shifts starting at 5:20 a. m. Chicago time, today, after local 20 of the CIO United Mail Order, Warehouse and Retail employes decided to go back to work. In Chicago there was no indication from the company up to noon regarding its attitude, but its board of directors was scheduled to meet today.

BURMA BLOW SET AT QUEBEC

War Dept. Tells How Airborne Invasion Was Planned Months Ago.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 25—The war department disclosed yesterday that the airborne invasion of Japanese-held Burma by British forces and American airmen was planned at the Quebec conference of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Anglo-American military leaders last August.

The official announcement of the planning and carrying out of the invasion last month served to emphasize the long interval necessary to blueprint, train and equip the complicated operations of World War II—in this instance—almost eight months.

The idea of having a specially trained "air commando force" fly the jungle fighters of Maj. Gen. Orde C. Wingate over the heads of the enemy and land them behind the Japanese lines was inspired by Wingate's earth-bound expedition into Burma in the spring of 1943, the department said. Wingate's columns in that operation were supplied by air—the new idea was to take them in by air, supply them and literally set up a beachhead in the interior, rather than on the edge of enemy territory.

Given Go Ahead

Gen. H. H. Arnold, AAF commander, was given the go-ahead by the Quebec conferences. His first action was to appoint Col. Philip G. Cochran and Col. John R. Alison, both already famous veterans of air fighting, to organize the mission and to issue this one terse order.

"To hell with paperwork. Go out and fight."

The jump-off from India was at 6:12 p. m. March 5. Twenty-six C-47U transports, with multiple tons of CG-4A gliders, were in the first wave. Of 54 gliders dispatched that night and not recalled, 37 landed at the selected spot, eight came down in friendly territory and nine in enemy-held areas.

The gliders, carrying fighters, engineers and bulldozers, landed in the rough opening in the Burmese jungle in the dark.

Thirty men were killed and 33 injured; almost all the gliders were damaged or destroyed; four bulldozers were landed, but one was put out of commission in the landing.

A radio was set up and orders went back to stop a second wave of two planes and gliders.

Hundreds of Men Landed

More than 500 men had been landed by the gliders. The engineers and the bulldozers went to work. By the following night an airfield had been built and 62 trips by big C-47 transport planes had added hundreds of more men to the garrison. For seven days, thousands of men (the original plans called for troops "up to a strength of a division") climbed out of an uninterrupted chain of planes shuttling from India to the jungle beachhead. A half-million pounds of supplies, 1,183 mules and 175 ponies were on the ground.

The American Air Force had delivered Wingate's men, their weapons and their supplies in the enemy's back yard.

PLANE CRASH

of the wings and engines settled over sections of a block bounded by Colborne, Ottawa, Shannon and Smith streets—not far from the Canadian National Railways' old Bonaventure station.

The plane apparently struck coming in over Shannon street, wrecking two tenement houses. Its fuselage came to rest in a mass of wreckage in which bodies could be seen.

Flames from the exploded bomber set afire a half dozen buildings. One woman removed from a structure by fireman screamed that her three children still were inside.

Two hundred soldiers were brought into the area as firemen brought the flames under control.

Constable Philippe Lemieux, patrolling his beat at the time of the crash, was hit by the fuselage and killed. Edgar Forget of Farnham, Que., died in one of the wrecked dwellings.

Four Teen Age Ohio Girls Held by FBI

By The Associated Press

WEST MEMPHIS, Ark., April 25—Four teen-aged girls who said they lived in Warren, O., were being held today on a federal charge of transporting a stolen automobile to Arkansas.

The four gave their names as Sandra Bassick, Marjorie Jean Deckert and Chirolette Anne Puck, all 14, and Helen Viahogenis, 16. Miss Viahogenis pleaded innocent when arraigned in Little Rock yesterday and was ordered held under $1,000 bond. The other three were taken to Jonesboro for a hearing.

FBI agents said the girls told them the car was given to them in Cincinnati, O., by a man who had driven them the 6 from Warren. They said they had started to Texas where Miss Viahogenis has relatives.

Order of the Cootie To Hold Session in Marion

Arrangements for a meeting and initiation were made Sunday, when the Military Order of the Cootie, Veterans of Foreign Wars, met in Chillicothe. The second degree initiation will be held in Marion May 28. Units, Bucyrus, Springfield, Circleville, Columbus and Chillicothe organizations will be represented. Temporary arrangements have been made to handle 100 visitors.

At the state V. F. W. Cootie encampment in July in Columbus the third degree will be conferred.

Those from Marion attending the meeting Sunday at Chillicothe were Scott Howison of the U. S. Veterans Facility, Paul D. Reynolds, Robert Dombaugh, Ruben Severns and Norval Foreman.

SCHOOLS TO HOLD MUSIC FESTIVAL

Elementary Pupils To Give Program May 4 at Central.

The elementary public school music festival will be presented Thursday evening, May 4, at the Central Junior High school it was announced today by Miss Jane Scott, supervisor of elementary music in the public schools.

The setting will have as a theme, "America Sings," and the program will interpret the folk tales and music of the country. The all-city elementary school orchestra, made up of pupils directed by Homer E. Huffman, supervisor of instrumental music in the city schools, and Miss Scott, will present an instrumental prelude to open the program at 7:30 o'clock.

Folk tunes of the people will be presented by the fourth grade city chorus and will include Indian, Negro and traditional American music. Folk tunes of the state will be presented by the fifth grade city chorus and will include music of New England, southern Appalachians and the west and mid-west, and songs by American composers including Stephen Foster, Charles Wakefield Cadman and Edgar Stillman Kelley, will be presented by the sixth grade city chorus. Miss Wanda McMahan will play the accompaniments.

Tickets will be on sale at the school the evening of the program. Admission will be 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children.

GALION—The birth of a son at Crestline emergency hospital Monday to Mr. and Mrs. John Douglas of Crestline, was announced here. The father is serving as pharmacists mate, 1/c in the Navy. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Douglas of Galion, are the grandparents.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Muffins
2 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
¾ cup milk
1 cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
2½ teaspoons baking powder
Blend shortening and sugar thoroughly. Add egg and beat well. Stir in All-Bran and milk. Let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture. Stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans ⅔ full. Bake in hot oven (400°F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: 8 large muffins.
* For prune muffins, add ½ cup well-soaked pitted and chopped prunes to dry ingredients.
* For bacon muffins, add ¼ cup crisp, diced bacon to dry ingredients.
And remember, too KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN by itself is a rich, natural source of the whole grain "protective" food elements — protein, the B vitamins, phosphorus, calcium and iron!

STOCKS WATCH FOR INVASION

List Steadier, However, as Market Overcomes Selling Trend.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 25 — The stock market still was invasion-conscious today but selling dried up and leading issues generally regained their equilibrium.

Prices churned about somewhat more actively after a quiet start and, near the fourth hour, trends were no worse than a shade uneven.

Modest advances were posted for U. S. Steel, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Great Northern, Texas Co., General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Anaconda, Kennecott, Youngstown Sheet and Western Union "A." Occasional laggards were United Aircraft, Montgomery Ward, Phelps Dodge, Westinghouse, J. C. Penney and Union Carbide.

WHEAT AND RYE UP, OATS LOSES GROUND

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 25—Small offerings of wheat and rye responded readily today to buying by milling interests and houses with southwestern connections and edged higher, but oats lost ground on reports that the office of price administration may lower the ceiling seven to eight cents.

Short covering of wheat also added to the strength of the bread cereal. Rye was aided by wheat's upward movement and considerable buying of the December contract attributed to a local trader. Oats recovered some of the early loss suffered on reports that OPA officials, meeting here today to set new ceilings, were talking of setting permanent prices tops seven to eight cents lower.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

"THAT CAN be arranged very easily," I said, trying to make my voice casual, although uneasiness, amounting to terror, was threatening to overwhelm me. What reason did Hugh Grantland have for taking such elaborate precautions? Of what was he so afraid—he who had faced so many dangers in so many parts of the world?

But I reined in my questions with an iron hand, for he was speaking again, this time with no trace of anxiety in his manner. Indeed his lips began to twitch as he referred to Katie.

Will Instruct

"And I can arrange my plans accordingly," he said. "I shall be able to instruct Katie in her 'detee-a-tuff' duties, first putting into the corridor whichever boy stays with me, and shutting up Lee Chow in the bathroom. Thus your ambitious farmworker and I shall be able to talk without interruption."

"I wish you joy of your interview," I told him dryly. "Now I'll go down and write that note. How soon will my messenger be down?"

He smiled encouragingly at the boys, and I saw that they were being transported to the seventh heaven.

"Just as soon as they have tossed coins to see which one stays here and which goes to Tices' to wait for Charlie Kent,' he said.

"Then I'll hurry," I said, and went away on the word, racing up the stairway and opening the chimney door into the attic. When I had closed it again, I heard Faith's voice bombarding her grandmother with questions, most of them one-syllabled, the eternal "Why?" of childhood, and I drew a relieved breath from the soles of my shoes. So far there had been no interruption of the peaceful routine of the farmhouse.

Informs Katie

I went to the kitchen first, and told Katie of the plan to serve Hugh, Lee Chow and one of our boys in the secret apartment, before our dinner was served downstairs.

"Vot old vom—I mean vot Madam Graham say to dot?" Katie inquired, and with difficulty I reined in my risibles at her valiant effort to reform her allusions to my doughty mother-in-law.

"She is making no objections whatever," I said. "Now just hurry up that dinner and get it on the dumbwaiter as fast as you can. One of the boys will help you get it down the stairs to the secret chamber, and before you serve it, Major Grantland will instruct you as to the ways in which you can help him in the problem on which he is working."

"Oh-h!" Katie's joyous exclamation was a squeal. "I tink I take my detecntuff man-u-al down dere met me. Vot you tink?"

"I don't think you'll need it with Major Grantland," I told her, trying to keep my voice steady. "Much better to leave it here where you can study it by yourself."

Sigh

Her lugubrious sigh made me turn my back on her with a hasty "I have to go to the study," and her resigned "Okay, voteter you say!" quickened my pace to the study almost to a run.

There I wrote the note to Mrs. Tiger which Hugh had outlined, and added a postscript of my own.

"Please give to ....." I left a blank for the name as I had done in the note, "the bundle of clothing which I asked you to put into your trunk. And will you also please give . . . something to eat. He has missed his dinner here."

I smiled to myself as I signed the note. I knew how generously she would interpret that last injunction.

The ink was not dry upon my pen before I heard the sound of racing footsteps outside. Then Junior rushed through the door and enveloped me in a strangling hug. But I managed to free my right hand and write his name in the blanks.

"Is the note ready, Mums?" he asked eagerly. "I won the toss to take it over and bring Charlie Kent back, and I want to show Uncle Hugh how fast I can get back to the attic."

Note Ready

"The note is all ready," I said, handing it to him unsealed. "I have asked Mr. Tiger to give you a bundle of clothing to bring back, and also have asked her to give you some name. You are going over by the secret way instead of the kitchen door."

I had held him close to me while I spoke, for I knew he would be gone a soon as I loosened my embrace. But as I let drop my arms at the last query, he tightened his for an instant as he bent his dear tousled head and gave me a fervent kiss.

"Yes," he said as he turned away. "Uncle Hugh thought it would be safer that way."

Then from the doorway, with a last reassuring look at me, floated his understanding farewell: "Good-bye, Mums, Darling!"

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Baby's Drinking

SOME TIME ago in order to evoke comment I published a letter from a lady who referred to "the pernicious practice of teaching tiny babies to take their nourishment from a cup." She quoted Dr. Alexis Carrel as saying that "sucking is necessary for the proper development of the jaws, nose and roof of the mouth." Here is a comment:

"Your column is read with interest every day at our house. This morning's paper really did 'evoke further comment,' at least from me.

"In regard to the statement that infants should not be fed from a cup, I should like to tell you of our experience.

"After a severe fever when my little girl was six months old I was unable to nurse her. An older doctor suggested feedings from a cup. Although rather hard to do at first, she thrived and gained weight.

"We held the child in our laps and turned the cup towards her as you would drink from it yourself. There is a sucking motion and if the child is exceptionally hungry she nearly pulls the cup from your hand."

Advises Cup Drinking

A friend of mine, Dr. C. M. Frizgen who is the "complete pediatrician" and qualifies as an authority because he brought his two children up on cup drinking and has a picture of them at the age of six to show how healthy they are, teaches all his students, so he tells me, to train mothers to teach babies to drink out of a cup rather than a nursing bottle.

There are several advantages, the most important being that it teaches them to eat. Thus there is no hiatus at the time when the baby begins to take more or less solid food.

Besides there seems to be a more regular alignment of teeth in the cup drinkers than in the bottle suckers. That some changes are made in the mouth parts from too vigorous sucking is evidenced by another letter received from Toronto:

"I have a little son of three and one half years of age. He has never lost the nursing bubble that appears on the upper lip of babies. He was weaned from the breast at seven months and on a bottle for two months. Will this have to be removed, and if so in what way?"

I am assured, again by Dr Frizgen, that these sucking pads all go away in the course of time although he says he has seen some persist even to the fifth year.

Gets Enough Milk

Contrary to expectations and pre-suppositions the baby who drinks from the cup does not spill most of the meal. He gets all he needs, as is shown by weight gain, practically universally found in cup drinkers.

It is really Nature's method. The baby at the breast does not suck the milk out from the mother. It flows out in response to the stimulus of the baby's lips against the nipple. It is only at the end of the feeding that the baby does any vigorous sucking and this is an instinctive action which stimulates the breast to begin secreting for the next meal.

Along these lines I have another letter:

"I am the grandmother of a 15-day-old baby boy who weighs seven pounds now and seems healthy. The trouble and worry for me is this: The hospital nurse told the mother to always put the baby on his stomach. The baby, of course helpless, lies upside down, his face pressed in the bedding, arms and hands crushed under him."

There is no "must" about putting the baby on the stomach, but that is the best and natural position for going to sleep. If put on its back it may stay wide eyed and want to play. It also prevents rapping hair off the back of the head. A healthy baby is not helpless: turns its head on the side to get air. The arms and legs won't get crushed. Most babies move faster than you can keep them on the stomach.
